TESTIFY TURNER SUPERVISED JOB IN MORGAN FORGERY

Member of Firm That Did the Printing and Engraving Who Made Signature Plate Heard for State.

TURNER AT SHOP 8 TIMES, WITNESS SAYS

Defendant's Attorney Had Said Client Admitted Looking After Engraving, but Denied the Printing Charge

Testimony that Harry Turner of 411 Washington boulevard supervised the printing of the reading matter on the $1,000,000 issue of counterfeit interim certificates of J. P. Morgan & Co. for French Government bonds, and that he hired an engraver to make a steel die with the signature of Morgan & Co. was given today in Turner's trial, in Circuit Judge Grimm's court, on the charge of third-degree forgery.

Francis E. McGill of the McGill Printing Co., 121 North Eleventh street, gave the testimony as to the printing, saying that Turner had been in consultation with him at least eight times, and that he was positive in his identification of the defendant. His father, P. P. McGill, proprietor of the printing office, also identified Turner as having been there several times.

Testimony of Engraver.

Charles Olson, an engraver in the employ of a downtown jewelry firm, testified that he answered a newspaper advertisement for an engraver and called at Turner's house, and that Turner employed him to make the steel plate with the Morgan signature, the plate being an inch long and one-fourth inch high; and that he delivered the steel plate to Turner. The plate, which was subsequently used to emboss the signature on the coupons of the counterfeit certificates, and which was obtained by the State, was introduced in evidence.

The testimony of these witnesses contains what the circuit attorney's office considers the essential elements of the State's case against Turner. The previous testimony had been that Turner arranged for the engraving of the sheets on which the counterfeit certificates were later printed. Turner, according to the opening statement made by his lawyer yesterday, admits having looked after the engraving, but declares that he was acting for George V. Halliday, bankrupt broker and convicted embezzler, and that he had no knowledge of Halliday's purpose, or of any unlawful use made of the engraved sheets. Turner has denied that he had anything to do with getting the printing done, or that he knew anything about it.

Tells of Turner's Visits.

McGill, who is the son of the proprietor of the McGill printing establishment, testified Turner first called at the shop in May, 1921, showed him an engraved border of what appeared to be a bond, and asked him if he could do printing on some sheets of this character, saying the job would be 1000 sheets. He said he was not able to satisfy Turner as to the quality of work which would be done, and that Turner left. He returned Oct. 1, 1921, McGill testified, and placed an order for the printing of 1000 sheets, with engraved borders. As "copy," he testified, Turner gave him a counterfeit certificate of J. P. Morgan & Co. for a $100 French gold bond. He testified Turner told him verbally to make the amount $1000 instead of $100, but did not mark it down. Then, and that the matter was set right and corrected later in proof, by Turner.

Turner asked, McGill testified, whether the shop had the exact faces of type shown in the original, and McGill replied that it had not, whereupon, he said, he was going to use type as nearly like it as possible. He said Turner got the first proofs, which he held nearly two weeks, saying, when he finally returned, that he had been in New York. McGill identified the first proof, an exhibit in the case. Besides minor corrections, it showed the change in amount from $100 to $1000.

McGill said that Turner also wrote to the bottom of the sheet, "American Bank Note Co.," and said in explanation that the words should be printed there, as the engraving had been done by that company.

Arrangement as to Signature.

McGill said Turner also furnished him a small engraved plate, or die, with the Morgan firm's signature, which he identified this plate, which was the one previously identified by Olson. He said Turner told him that the plate must be used in stamping the coupons attached to the certificate, and that he replied that his printing concern could not do that, as it was embossing work.

SPEEDING TRAIN TERRIFIED CHILDREN AT FIRST MOVIE

Semi-Civilized Little Ones on a Scottish Island Fled at Strange Sight.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 23.—The first movie show ever witnessed by peasant children on the island of St. Kilda so terrified them that they stampeded from the school room, where the film was being exhibited, and sought safety on the wild hillsides, says the correspondent of the Daily Express, who is touring the lonely islet that lies west of Scotland.

St. Kilda is inhabited by a semi-civilized people and a party of visitors, thinking to give the natives a treat, arranged a moving-picture entertainment. The young folks were out in full force, despite the loneliness of their elders, who suspected magic. The audience sat unmoved through a picture of a football match, but when an express train rushed at them across the screen the youngsters screamed as they fled.

SUPER-MADISON SQUARE GARDEN WILL BE BUILT IN NEW YORK

Ringling and Col. Huston in Group to Finance New Structure Seating 18,000 Persons.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 23.—New York is to have a super-Madison Square Garden to cost several million dollars and to seat about 18,000 persons. It will be built in Fourth avenue, extending to Lexington avenue and running from Thirty-second to Thirty-third streets, on the former site of the New York Railway Co. car barns, recently sold at public auction.

John Ringling, circus proprietor, R. E. Albee, director of B. F. Keith's vaudeville interests, and Col. Tillinghast L. Huston, who, on Monday, announced the sale of his half-interest in the New York American baseball club, will be the owners.

Erection of the new coliseum will mean eventually the passing of Madison Square Garden. The garden, it is understood, is to be sold to the New York Life Insurance Co. to a real estate firm, which plans to construct large office buildings on the block.

436 ON CANADIAN LINER SUFFERED FROM THE COLD

Relief Organizations Go to Assistance of Passengers and Crew Who Escaped in Sinking of Craft.

By the Associated Press.
ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 23.—Relief organizations today came to the assistance of the 436 passengers and crew of the Canadian Pacific liner Marvalde, who escaped in lifeboats when the vessel went down after striking a reef Monday.

The shipwrecked company, including numerous women and about 1200 infants, suffered severely from cold, loss of sleep and scarcity of food. All lost their personal possessions.

EASTER ISLAND STILL ON MAP

Schooner Sights Land Reported Sunk Beneath the Pacific by Quake.

By the Associated Press.
SANTIAGO, Chile, May 23.—Recent rumors that Easter Island had sunk beneath the Pacific during the intense earthquake of last November are unfounded.

The fishing schooner Falcon, which sailed for the island in February, reported yesterday, reporting that all was well.

The island, which is used by the Chilean Government as a penal colony, has a population of about 1200. It is the easternmost inhabited member of the Polynesian group, and is remarkable for its giant sculpture apparently the work of a pre-historic people. The island lies 2500 miles west of the Chilean coast.

EUROPE SHUNS ART OF AMERICA, SAYS SAINT-GAUDENS

'Barbaric' and 'Soulless,' Is Foreign View, Carnegie Director Tells Federation Convention Here.

FINDS RACE HATRED BARRIER ABROAD

Declares French Critic Holds U. S. Artists Paint for Wealthy Instead of Masses—'Lack Idea.'

Art, like politics, has its national and international situations. It is with art at home and abroad that the fourteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Arts, which began this morning at Hotel Chase, is to deal.

Judging from the first half-day of discussion, American art is coming along very well in America, but in Europe it is considered barbaric, soulless and uninteresting. The English, French and Italians must yet be awakened.

Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, and a son of the late Augustus Saint-Gaudens, famous sculptor, collects an international exhibit of paintings each year and goes to Europe every winter. He had this to say in his address this morning regarding international difficulties:

"We are leading the world in art today. At least, that is what our own artists believe. It is a matter of popular belief hereabouts that the center of art has moved from Rome and Paris to New York."

"I base my opinion on the results of two international exhibitions with which I have been associated in Pittsburgh. However, a fly dropped into the ointment both years. I found that I could lead any one of such foreign jury members as Simon, Knight or John up to any of our acknowledged masters of the past, such as Thayer or Homer or Dewing, and have them view these paintings without a flicker of the eye. In other words, from the European point of view, American art is far behind European art."

Finds American Idea Lacking.

A bit ruffled by this discovery, Saint-Gaudens said, he asked the French critic, Georges Desvallieres, what he thought was the matter with American art. And this was his response:

"You have a lot of brilliant and clever workmen in your land who will turn out for you any day a good landscape, or a good interior, or a genre or a still life. However, when all is said and done, they are just reproducing the mundane exterior of your society. Moreover, they are just painting it for your wealthy and dilettante class, and not for the mass of your people. You artists have yet to grasp and to set forth the American idea. Perhaps that is because you have no idea to set forth."

It must not be supposed that there is solid alliance of European nations against American art. Saint-Gaudens thinks little of European alliances.

From an artistic standpoint, which he says he does not discuss, the situation is as follows:

"We cannot here in our land realize for a moment what a complicated mass of racial hatreds is Europe. How the Italians detest the French! A French man on a jury is enough to stop every good painter in Italy. How the English and French try to force themselves to like one another and cannot."

The speaker did not discuss, at this juncture, the world court or the League of Nations, but hastened on to recommend the Venetian International Exhibitions as the best foothold American artists have at present in Europe. Saint-Gaudens has little hope they will do much abroad so long as Europeans refuse to buy American art while American collectors are buying European art.

Bixby Tells of Art Here.

Other speakers on the program, turning to the domestic situation, president of the federation, W. K. Bixby, vice president of the federation and president of the board of control of the City Art Museum, gave the address of welcome. He spoke of art in Missouri. People here spend money for art, he said. Mentioning the appropriation of $700,000 for decoration of the State Capitol, he then referred to St. Louis. Here, art receives no general support, with the exception of a university art school, an art alliance and a museum which receives $200,000 a year from taxes for maintenance.

Means of promoting public interest in art were touched upon by Miss Laura Joy Hawley, field secretary of the federation, and by Prof. Holmes Smith of Washington University. Miss Hawley recommended the continued and increased

Map of the Skies and Catalogue of 300,000,000 Stars Nearly Finished Astronomers Completing Gigantic Task in Paris Observatory—18 Nations Have Contributed to Work Aided by Telescope.

Consequence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 23.—What is regarded here as one of the most interesting and valuable results of modern studies in astronomy is nearing completion in the Paris Observatory after 26 years of painstaking labor. It is a map of the heavens and catalogue of the stars. The compilation shows that there are approximately 300,000,000 heavenly bodies visible through the powerful telescopes.

Photographing the heavens was a plan first developed by the Paris Observatory, and its then director, Admiral Mouchez, was called here in 1887 to an international congress of astronomers which decided to map the heavens. There were 18 nations, including Russia, Chile, and the republics of Argentina and Brazil, which agreed to contribute to this work.

The heavens were subdivided, with four French observatories taking the central zones of the heavens. Number of stars appearing in the photographic map contain stars to the seventh magnitude, whereof there are above 20,000,000. Stars to the sixth magnitude may be seen with the naked eye, and above that, telescopes and other aids are needed. In reality, it is explained, the number of stars appear to be infinite. As huge lenses are constructed, each increase in the size of the lens reveals a larger number of stars.

A few years ago the number of stars was set at approximately 100,000,000. Now that number has been trebled, and as the explorers of new worlds in the universe progress in their studies, they find space filled with stars the light of which reaches the eye of the explorer after years of travel, so distant are these bodies.

FIREMEN'S UNION TO MAKE DEMAND FOR 8-HOUR DAY

Action Will Be Based Upon Ordinance Passed Two Years Ago but Never Put Into Effect.

A demand that the city for an 8-hour day for members of the Fire Department, effective June 1, under an ordinance passed two years ago, but never put into effect, will be presented probably tomorrow by the Firemen's Union, Edward Foristel, attorney for the union, announced today. The action follows rejection of requests of $25 a month salary increases for men below the rank of captain.

Firemen now are working on the basis of 24 hours on duty and 24 hours off duty, under a compromise reached with the city when officials declared that the 8-hour schedule would be prohibitive. The increased salary bill, if the 8-hour day goes into effect, is estimated at $420,000 a year. The salary increases sought totaled $308,000 a year.

Approximately 750 men were affected in the request for salary increases, which was rejected recently by the Board of Estimate. The ground the city revenues will be insufficient to grant it. Last Friday an amended bill was sent to the board, reducing the increase sought to $10 a month. This also was rejected.

Foristel said the union would demand payment of individuals for time they work in excess of eight hours a day, after June 1, and that suit for collection would be filed, if the claims are not met.

FAILS TO FIND SUBMARINE CHASER TO DELIVER RADIO SET

Dealer Who Sold Outfit and Cashed Treasury Draft Now Trying to Find Out if Paper Is Good.

A submarine chaser, supposed to be anchored below East Carondelet, was the object of a wild-goose chase by the clerk of the Benwood Radio Co. yesterday. The clerk was to deliver a radio outfit which had been purchased by a man who gave the name of a commander of the United States Navy, and who gave directions for the delivery of the outfit to a submarine chaser. No such craft was found at the location named.

The outfit was priced at $235.49, and the man gave in payment a United States Treasury draft made out to the name given by him, for $250, and received $14.60 change. The name given is that of a navy commander. In active service, but the record at the navy recruiting office shows him as being in Chinese waters at present.

INTRUDER ENTERS HOME TO PLAY JAZZ RECORDS

Stranger Found Enjoying Phonograph at 5 A. M.—Thought Home Was His Mother's.

Sir James M. Barrie, in "What Every Woman Knows," told of a youth who loved reading so much that he committed burglary to gain the use of a neighbor's library.

Briggs, 40 years old, was arrested shortly after 5 a. m. today, under circumstances that made it appear that he had committed at least the offense of trespass, in order to enjoy the use of a phonograph and jazz records in a house not his own—the home of A. W. Dickinson at 1103 Lawn avenue.

Mrs. Dickinson and her 16-year-old son were awakened after daylight by hearing the strains of "Home Again Blues" from the phonograph in their own sitting room. Mrs. Dickinson went to the door and captured the intruder, who seemed spellbound by jazz.

Bridges explained, at the Mounted District police station, that he had come in from Peirce City, Mo., last night, and had gone to what he supposed was his mother's home. Not wishing to awaken anyone, he said, he entered by the unlocked rear door and lay down on a couch sitting up, and he started the phonograph as a diversion.

The police didn't know what to think, but decided to hold him for a time. "The man appeared to be sober," said the policeman who reported on the case.

Queen and Princess in Auto Crash

By the Associated Press.
ALDERSTON, May 23.—Queen Mary and Princess Mary narrowly escaped what might easily have been a serious accident today when motor cars collided with a truck on a side road.

A motor lorry dashed from a side road and collided with the car of Lieutenant-General Sir Philip Chetwode, which was following close behind the royal motor car. Through presence of mind on the part of the driver of Sir Philip's car, no one was hurt, although the machines were damaged.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS MOST OF DEMANDS MADE BY BRITISH

Soviet Ready to Grant Right to Fish Outside 3-Mile Limit—Holding of Conference Suggested.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 23.—Soviet Russia's second reply to the British ultimatum accepts the majority of the British demands and suggests the holding of a conference to consider points in dispute. The Soviet expresses readiness to conclude, forthwith an agreement granting British citizens the right to fish outside the three-mile limit off the Russian coast, pending settlement by an international convention of the dispute over the extent of territorial waters.

Compensation Offered.

The Soviet Government says it is ready to pay compensation for the seizure of British trawlers and for the execution of Charles F. Davidson and the arrest and detention of Mrs. Stan Harding, a newspaper correspondent, but it refuses to recognize that there was any irregularity in the measures taken against "these spies."

It offers to withdraw the two Weinstein notes, written in reply to the British protests over the prosecution of high church officials, which notes the British consider offensive.

While denying the charge of having infringed the Anglo-Russian trade agreement in the East, the Soviet agrees to a conference, it is also ready to investigate friendly representations regarding alleged infringements of the trade agreement on a basis of reciprocity. If Great Britain agrees to a conference, it is stated Foreign Minister Tchitcherin will be delegated to represent Russia.

The note generally sets forth that the consequences possible from the breaking of relations have caused the Soviet government serious apprehensions and that it is to avoid such results that the Soviet is willing to make these new concessions.

91ST ANNUAL CROP ON TREE

Branches of World's Largest Cherry Bearer Cover 5000 Feet.

BREMEN, Wash.—The largest cherrytree in the world, which stands on the old Webb homestead on the banks of the Skokomish River, promises a tremendous crop gain this summer, said by the first striver here to be its ninety-first season of fruition. The cherry tree is more than six feet through at the base and the branches are estimated to cover 5000 square feet. Far from a highway, and in an inaccessible position, the famous tree is rarely visited by tourists, but thousands annually buy photographs of it and eat the cherries which are sold in season.

Arrests of 'Bad Men' at Once, Four of Whom Were Armed

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 23.—A good policeman is not necessarily a big one. Chief Collins learned today when a special report from a precinct commander told of the simultaneous arrest recently of seven "bad men," four of whom were armed, by Patrolman William E. McAvary, the smallest man on the Chicago force. McAvary registers five feet in height, with something of an effort, and is of slight build. Several men in automobile sped away from a corner of his beat as McAvary hove into sight. The officer drew his revolver, leaped on the running board, covered the chauffeur, disarmed his companions, lined them up according to height and marched them single file to the station.

BETHLEHEM STEEL'S BIG WAR CONTRACTS CLAIM IS REJECTED

Ruling of Shipping Board Committee Based on Interpretation That, if Sustained by Courts, Will Result in Recovery of Hundreds of Millions by Government.

$8,500,000 INVOLVED IN SCHWAB CLAIM

Opinion Holds That Contractor Is Not Entitled to Excess Over Fee, Based on Economies Effected in Work.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The claim of the Bethlehem Steel Co. for $8,500,000 alleged to be due under war-time contracts has been tentatively disapproved by the Shipping Board's Claim Committee in a decision which was said today to have the approval of a majority of the board.

The decision was based on a formal legal opinion setting forth a new and sweeping interpretation of Government contracts which, if sustained by the courts, will result in the recovery by the Government of hundreds of millions of dollars paid out in settlement of claims for emergency construction.

"Savings" Claim Rejected.

In brief, the opinion held that a contractor cannot collect from the Government under the so-called "savings clause." The Bethlehem contract, like scores of other important wartime industrial agreements, provided that the company should receive a fixed fee plus a stipulated percentage of any economies it might effect which would bring the cost of the work below a set figure. In the opinion of counsel consulted by the committee and affirmed by the Department of Justice, the contractor is bound in honor and at law to give the best possible results in performing the work he undertakes and to effect without extra compensation all possible economies.

Under this interpretation the $20,000,000 already paid the Bethlehem corporation as fees under its contract would be regarded as closing that contract and that large sums claimed as "savings" would have no standing.

Outside of any consideration of the validity of the company's claim, however, it was suggested today the board might offer to the Bethlehem company, in lieu of any sums considered due it, a quit-claim to the nearly $10,000,000 of improvements installed at three of the company's plants at Government expense.

Schwab Letter Read.

It developed today that in the executive hearings conducted by the committee under the case, one of the precedents cited was established by Charles Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Corporation, and also a former director-general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

A letter sent by the fleet corporation during Schwab's tenure of office to the American Shipbuilding Co. was read into the record. It called attention to a financial statement issued by the company, in which profits of 8 per cent on Government contracts were forecast, and declared that President Wilson had informed officials of the board during the last administration that the percentage must be considered adequate lawfully to make a profit.

The American Shipbuilding Co. maintained several plants on the Great Lakes at which 156 ships were constructed.

Since the fees already paid Bethlehem represented more than 13 per cent on its contract, the board's committee held that Schwab could not himself gracefully sponsor a demand for additional payment.

It was predicted in official circles that continued consideration of the Bethlehem contract would disclose other elements which would have important bearing upon the pending settlement of claims of war-time contractors now being closed up by the various Government bureaus. An indication of its importance was given when Chairman Lasker requested the entire board to be present where, as routine cases had been considered by the Claims Committee alone,

LONDON PRESS IS FRIENDLY TOWARD THE NEW PREMIER

Stanley Baldwin's Appointment Said to Meet Popular Wishes and to Please Both Wings of the Conservative Party; Liberals Drawing Together.

LLOYD GEORGE SHOWS OPPOSITION EARLY

Baldwin, Like Bonar Law, His Predecessor, Entered Politics From the Iron Trade and Has Confidence of Business.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 23.—No incoming Prime Minister could wish for no better reception from the press than that accorded to Stanley Baldwin. The morning newspapers say the appointment is in accordance with popular wishes and is the best solution under the circumstances. Reports from Conservative quarters throughout the country confirm this opinion.

Some of the opposition critics regard the appointment as a triumph for the die-hard section of the Conservative party.

The Daily Chronicle, a staunch supporter of Lloyd George, says: "It testifies to an orientation of the conservative, which is full of menace for the nation's future."

Lord Curzon, the newspaper continues, was passed by because the die-hards have declared a vendetta against him. The Chronicle asserts that Baldwin's budget and regarding his part in the Anglo-American negotiations it says, "It is possible that no negotiator could have got better terms but it is certain that none could have gotten worse."

This remark is apparently inspired by Lloyd George's speech before his constituents at Llanfairfechan last night in which the former Prime Minister, notwithstanding his promise to refrain from captious criticism, made it clear that the new ministry would receive less forbearance from the Liberal benches following than did Bonar Law's. The speech is generally interpreted as foreshadowing a consistent Georgeite opposition.

Reunion of Party Wings.—One outcome of the change of ministry much discussed as a probability is the hastening of a reunion of the two wings of the Liberal party. Unification of the divided Conservatives, however, is even more talked of.

Baldwin is credited with being more desirous of having the disgruntled Conservatives return to the fold, and it is said he would welcome not only Sir Robert Horne but Austen Chamberlain and Sir Laming Worthington-Evans as future collaborators. Sir Robert, a close friend of the new Premier, denies having received an invitation to become Chancellor of the Exchequer, but nobody doubts that he is in the running for the post.

If Sir Robert's appointment does not materialize, it is suggested that Chamberlain may be induced to become Chancellor. Chamberlain, who has been on vacation in Southern France, has suddenly departed and is reported to be returning here today. The only lost sheep whom the Tories seem more than willing to leave in the wilderness is Lord Birkbeck. His bitter tongue has made enemies for him and the newspapers think there is little likelihood that

Recent Portrait of New British Premier

STANLEY BALDWIN.

Baldwin will offer him any post. The Earl of Derby announced today that he had received an offer from Prime Minister Baldwin to continue to serve as Secretary of State for War and that he had agreed to do so. Much interest has been aroused among the public from the fact that Lord Robert Cecil had a long interview with the Prime Minister this morning. The purpose of the conference could not be learned. Added to the unofficial practices of continued incumbency of the Foreign Secretary is a statement by the press association saying it understands Lord Curzon will continue in his present post in the new Cabinet.

Lloyd George's Allusions.—Lloyd George, in his speech last night, put his finger on what is generally considered the weak side of the Bonar Law administration. He said: "I had more confidence in the late Premier's restraining sagacity than in his driving capacity." In the course of a warm tribute to Bonar Law's friendship and loyalty, the former Premier, referring to the distressful condition of the European tangle, alluded to America as "disillusioned and disgusted. America has retired into prosperous seclusion, occasionally looking down through a window at us sitting in the muck of its trampled war field."

Lloyd George also alluded to the "one-sidedness of our debt to America, without reference to what was going to happen to the much larger debts owing elsewhere."

Graduated From Trade.—The new Prime Minister, like his predecessor, has graduated from trade, and also like Bonar Law, from the iron trade. Neither of these men was trained for politics, but adopted politics after a successful commercial career. This also is a departure to some extent from British traditions, the statesmen in the past being, to a very large extent, recruited from the ranks of the aristocracy or the legal profession.

This fact insures for the new Prime Minister the support and confidence of the commercial and financial world, which will be a great asset for him.

RIDE TO OFFICE PARALLELS THAT OF JEFFERSON

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, May 23.—King George yesterday, with unexpected promptness, solved the political crisis and gave England a new Prime Minister. A crowd had gathered outside Buckingham Palace gates, expecting to witness a dramatic moment, for by tradition the politician for whom the King sends first after a Premier resigns is offered the succession. But Baldwin's method of putting in an appearance fooled the thousands of onlookers. He took a taxi "off the rank" at Whitehall, with Mrs. Baldwin, dropped his wife at Birdcage Walk, alighted from his taxi in front of the palace gates, paid his fare and walked in unrecognized. His face is unknown to the public and spectators did not imagine the statesman of the royal choice would so arrive in the modern parallel to Thomas Jefferson riding a horse to the White House and being to the fence just before his inauguration.

Baldwin was with the King half an hour and then returned to No. 10 Downing street as Prime Minister. He owes his meteoric rise to the top of the ladder after only seven years political prominence to his leadership of the Carlton Club revolt last October.

Marquis Curzon, an old war horse of Toryism, covered with more honors by the King than any British statesman of this generation, acting Prime Minister when Andrew Bonar Law's health broke, finds himself passed over. This is partly because of the feeling against having a Premier in the House of Lords, and partly because Baldwin alone he would be able to deal with the labor opposition. Another factor unquestionably was his loyalty to Premier Lloyd George, who the countess of the Marquis will swallow this affront and remain Foreign Minister. If now or a little later he cannot get on with the new chief, the general opinion is that the Foreign Office will be offered to Lord Robert Cecil.

Baldwin's Sudden Rise.—Baldwin's sudden rise after nine years on the back bench of the House of Commons dates from 1917, when he was appointed financial secretary of the treasury. He obtained Cabinet rank as president of the Board of Trade in 1921, and in this capacity helped engineer the revolt against Lloyd George in the Carlton Club. For this service he was to the astonishment of the country, since most Englishmen had never heard of him, made Chancellor of the Exchequer last October.

Since then the reputation of his American debt funding expedition and his abilities in debate, which shine in an oratorically weak Cabinet, have increased his reputation. His "disloyalty" to Lloyd George last year will, however, definitely alienate probably all the 55 National Liberals in the House of Commons, many of whom had pledged themselves to support the Bonar Law Government. The National Liberals have been gradually drifting away from the Government, but this change, which releases them from their pledge, seems certain to reduce the Government majority en-

NO ADVICES ABOUT BANDITS' CAPTIVES IN LAST 48 HOURS

Foreign Legations in Peking Without Any Word Regarding the Brigands or Their Hostages.

By the Associated Press. SHANGHAI, May 23.—The situation with regard to the foreign prisoners held by the Suchow bandits is "growing worse," according to a cablegram sent today by the Italian Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai to the Italian Foreign Minister at Rome.

By the Associated Press. PEKING, May 23.—At the foreign legations today it was said that for 48 hours no information had come from Linching regarding the Suchow bandits and their captives. There have been no replies to the last two notes which the diplomatic corps served on the Chinese officials. Both notes insisted emphatically on the release of the foreigners and the last communication expressed astonishment at the Chinese Government's failure to accomplish anything.

Climbed 1000 Feet by Means of Teaholds, Pinger Writes.

By the Associated Press. TIENTSIN, May 23.—In a letter to his wife, Maj. Roland W. Pinger, United States army officer, held captive by the Suchow train bandits, describes the removal of three American prisoners, including himself, to the summit of Paotzuku, where escape or rescue seems almost impossible. Pinger said that late Sunday afternoon there was a commotion in the bandits' mountain stronghold and he was notified he was to be taken to the summit of the mountain, which is almost inaccessible. Lee Solomon and Maj. Robert Allen, the latter also an American army officer, also were ordered to accompany him.

"We climbed 1000 feet to the summit," wrote Pinger, "the last 200 being almost sheer. We went up slowly and laboriously, ascending by means of hand and toe holds cut in the rock."

"When we finally reached our altitudinal destination we were assigned to quarters hopelessly foul, already occupied by Chinese who, nevertheless, solved the political crisis and gave England a new Prime Minister. A crowd had gathered outside Buckingham Palace gates, expecting to witness a dramatic moment, for by tradition the politician for whom the King sends first after a Premier resigns is offered the succession.

But Baldwin's method of putting in an appearance fooled the thousands of onlookers. He took a taxi "off the rank" at Whitehall, with Mrs. Baldwin, dropped his wife at Birdcage Walk, alighted from his taxi in front of the palace gates, paid his fare and walked in unrecognized. His face is unknown to the public and spectators did not imagine the statesman of the royal choice would so arrive in the modern parallel to Thomas Jefferson riding a horse to the White House and being to the fence just before his inauguration.

Baldwin was with the King half an hour and then returned to No. 10 Downing street as Prime Minister. He owes his meteoric rise to the top of the ladder after only seven years political prominence to his leadership of the Carlton Club revolt last October.

Would Welcome Foreign Action.—We are away up in the air, a high almost as Mount Tamalpais at San Francisco, with a beautiful country spread out around us. The view is like an artist's map, but it serves to emphasize our squalid surroundings. We are down below everything seems blessed with a Sabbath peace and calm, our immediate surroundings suggest only the wickedness of man to man."

Pinger said he believed the action of the bandits in choosing three Americans to move to the Paotzuku summit was for the purpose of obtaining official American news and thus speeding up the negotiations between the Chinese Government and the brigands for the release of the captives.

He added that the bandits do not trust the Chinese Government and undoubtedly would welcome foreign intervention.

Joyed by Bonar Law by at least 39 votes.

The King generally is understood to lean in his own opinions to the die-hard wing of the Tory party. It is indeed seldom that the King's personal predilections play a part in party politics, and on this occasion they may have done so. The King received a report as to the Tory attitude from Lord Stamford. The list of names with whom the secretary had been conferring is significant. It included Lord Salisbury, the die-hard leader and the president of the council, the Duke of Devonshire, Home Secretary Bridgeman and "Irish" Lord Derby and Col. P. H. Jackson, chairman of the Conservative party organization in place of Lord Younger, who, with Admiral Sir Reginald Hall and other Right Wing Tories, had been openly conducting a campaign for Baldwin against Lord Curzon since Law's resignation.

That the new premier is a die-hard nominee is unquestionable, that he will prove, as his supporters hope, the first really reactionary premier of the present century may be doubtful. He has not sufficiently committed himself either on foreign or domestic issues to be fairly classed as a reactionary leader, though he seems to have hopelessly committed himself to the die-hard wing by leading the Carlton Club revolt.

H. J. Sidebottom, who writes under the pseudonym of "Student of Politics," and is one of the best informed political journalists, writes: "Mr. Baldwin is the nominee of the die-hards. His friends declare him to be without ambition, and he himself talks as though that were so. Close observers, however, have detected in him a strong, almost obstinate will which urbanity and the genial air of a politician do not wholly conceal. He has a light touch, a sense of humor, and is very nearly as dour as those of his die-hard admirers."

"None the less Mr. Baldwin as prime minister is almost certain to be in their hands and his action at the Carlton Club meeting would cripple what might otherwise be his natural development. For as a politician he is still unformed."

"His range is narrow, his influence outside his immediate circle very uncertain and, though he is in touch with affairs, his knowledge and experience in politics are still very new."

"His blunt honesty and strong will are not enough to make him the creative politician the party needs and if he succeeds he will be bound hand and foot."

By the Associated Press. MADISON, Wis., May 23.—After he had been captured in a restaurant James L. Whitfield, sought as the slayer of Patrolman Dennis Griffin at Cleveland, Ohio, broke away from two policemen and escaped under a shower of bullets last night. With him was a woman who gave her name as Marie Price, 24 years old. She said that she had traveled with him since his flight from Cleveland. She was held for questioning.

Whitfield was recognized by Albert Pelly, owner of the restaurant, from newspaper photographs. He notified the police.

Submitted to Arrest Quietly. Although surprised by the officers, Whitfield submitted quietly and was led to a waiting patrol wagon. He wrenched himself from the grip of the patrolman and dashed down an alley crossing State street. A bystander said that he stumbled as though wounded.

The trail was lost in a maze of streets and alleys in the "Latin quarter" where university students starve.

MAN WHO KILLED POLICEMAN CAUGHT, FLEES UNDER FIRE

J. L. Whitfield, Wanted in Cleveland, Found in Madison, Wis.—Girl Companion Held.

By the Associated Press. MADISON, Wis., May 23.—After he had been captured in a restaurant James L. Whitfield, sought as the slayer of Patrolman Dennis Griffin at Cleveland, Ohio, broke away from two policemen and escaped under a shower of bullets last night. The trail was lost in a maze of streets and alleys in the "Latin quarter" where university students starve.

Advices from Cleveland say that birth certificates there show Miss Price to be only 14 years old.

Police today are without a trace of Whitfield. The fugitive is believed by police officers to have been wounded.

Street Car Aided Escape.—When Whitfield entered the restaurant he was recognized immediately by the proprietress, who called the police. Two detectives entered the eating place and sat with the alleged murderer at the counter. With a gun at his back he was told not to move. Whitfield, having seen his chance, gave Whitfield his chance and he made a dash. Before the detectives could fire he had darted down a side street. Five shots were sent after him.

Aided by buildings, he managed to elude his pursuers. Crowds of automobile drivers and students aided in the search.

Recorded in the State Board of Control show that Whitfield, a mulatto, was sentenced to the Waupun penitentiary from Milwaukee, Feb. 20, 1906, for 14 years on a charge of assault with intent to rob. He was released in 1914.

"I Know How to Sympathize With You", Wilson Cables to Bonar Law

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 23.—Among the host of messages received by Andrew Bonar Law from well wishers, including the colonial Premiers and the President of the Irish Free State, was one of Woodrow Wilson, saying: "Having myself been hampered by ill-health, I know how to sympathize with you, and do with all my heart. I trust that your health may steadily return."

that it would have to be done in another establishment, and would cost $3 or $5 extra.

He said that Turner replied, "J. P. Morgan & Co. won't mind a little thing like that." The embossing was done by another company. McGill said Turner told him, in explanation of the work, that the issue of certificates allotted to the St. Louis district had been sold elsewhere, and that "W. R. Davis, Morgan's representative here, had given authority for the printing of the St. Louis quota here. McGill identified one of the counterfeiters in possession of the State as having been printed by his concern.

McGill testified that Turner took the 1000 printed certificates but that Turner returned Nov. 1, with "W. R. Davis" and called attention to an error in the amount appearing on the interest coupons. "Davis" said it would have to be changed, and said to Turner, McGill testified, "You will have to go to New York and get new stock." McGill replied that he would go that night.

Dealings Later With "Davis."—Nov. 6 or 7, McGill testified, "Davis" returned with 500 sheets, engraved like those used previously, and placed the order for printing them. "Davis," McGill said, and "Davis" got the finished Nov. 12, paid $7.75 cash and took it away.

McGill was asked who "Davis" was, and replied that he afterward learned that he was George V. Halliday, having seen Halliday in Turner after the arrest of both on Thanksgiving Day, 1921. Halliday is now jointly indicted with Turner, and is under a three-year penitentiary sentence in an embankment case growing out of the $100,000 failure of his brokerage firm.

Testimony of Elder McGill.—Frank P. McGill, proprietor of the shop and father of the previous witness, testified that he saw Turner in the printing shop about five times, first in May or June of 1921, again in the early part of October and finally in the latter part of October. He said, under cross-examination, that he did not know Turner's name until after Turner's arrest, when he saw him in the Federal Building. Asked to describe Turner's appearance on the several occasions that he saw him McGill said he was well dressed and had the appearance of being an "actor, banker or broker."

Olson's testimony, given before that of the two McGills, was comparatively brief.

The State showed Olson a slip of paper bearing the signature of J. P. Morgan & Co., which had been clipped from a genuine interim certificate issued by the company. Olson identified it as the copy from which he made the die of the Morgan signature at Turner's direction. He said he did the work in about an hour and that he delivered the die to Turner at Turner's residence the latter part of July or the early part of August, 1921. He said he had no dealing, in connection with the die, with anyone but Turner.

Recognized Morgan Signature.—Under cross-examination, Olson was taken over testimony he had given in depositions, and was asked if he had said that he recognized the signature on the paper given him by Turner as that of J. P. Morgan & Co. He replied that it was his recollection that he had so testified. He added that the paper submitted by Turner was folded and crumpled.

Turner's attorney asked, Olson whether he had done other work for Turner, such as making plates for cartoons, but the court sustained objections to questions along that line. However, the witness said he had made a cartoon for Turner, but that it was subsequent to the time that he made the die of the Morgan signature.

A. G. Caffer, who represented the Artcrafts Shop in negotiations with Turner for the engraving of the border of the certificates, and who testified yesterday, was recalled at the opening of this morning's session. He identified the typewritten sheet, purporting to be a copy of a telegram, which he said Turner gave him, and which was made into a contract between Turner and the Artcrafts Shop.

Purport of Telegram.—The purported day letter telegram was addressed to Downing, James & Co., Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, New York. The State has promised that it will show this first name to have been a fictitious one.

"Steel plates as per design," the purported day letter read, "can be manufactured within six weeks for $1000. Work will be as near an exact duplicate of sample as possible, allowing for minor inaccuracies of workmanship which would only be visible to the trade, which I take it, what you desire. After reading your letter carefully, it will be necessary to deposit $200 on the order, balance to be paid when work is finished and accepted. Six weeks is best possible. Please wire your wishes."

"The signature was 'H. S. Turner,' Caffer said, but that he did not add, in his presence, a notation at the bottom, which was:

"If the foregoing is in line with your understanding, kindly O. K. this paper and return to me, and it will constitute a contract between us as soon as I have an answer to the telegram from New York."

This was signed at the Artcrafts Shop, Caffer said, by P. W. Groellier, president of the concern, thus making it a contract.

Caffer related he was suspicious of the work which Turner gave him to do, and reported the facts to Stephen Connell of the United States Secret Service.

Turner's lawyer, in his opening statement yesterday, said it would be shown that the supposed telegram was given by Halliday to Turner with the request that Turner sign it, and that Turner did so at Halliday's request.

D. C. Lindeman, an office man for the Artcrafts Shop, testified that in October and November, 1921, he delivered two bundles of engraved sheets, the first 1000 and the second 5000 sheets, at Turner's house, and that each time he received a check signed by Alice Martin.

Art Needed in Industry.—William H. Holmes, director of the National Art Gallery in the National Museum at Washington, urged the erection of a building to house this exhibit, as it has outgrown its present quarters. Miss Lella Mechlin, secretary of the Federation, gave her annual report, showing a

Fresh Milk-bottled in the country

Reaches you fresher by a day than milk pasteurized and bottled in the city

The St. Louis Dairy Company plant, out in the fresh, pure air of the country, where milk should always be bottled, embodies all that a half century of dairy experience has proved best. In this splendid sanitary plant has been installed every modern appliance necessary to preserve the natural purity, healthfulness, flavor, and food value of milk. Milk fresh from the cows is pasteurized to obtain the highest degree of safety, and refrigerated for transportation. A fleet of refrigerator motor trucks, running on regular schedules, carries the milk direct to our city delivery wagons. This saves delays normally caused by railroad shipments or bottling in city plants. We cut out all intermediate handling, delivering the milk to St. Louis fresher by a day than is possible by any other dairy system. If you visited this plant in the country, some thirty miles out, you would return with a deepened respect for a bottle of St. Louis Dairy Milk. You would then realize how milk-safety is insured through bottling at the source of supply. You owe this milk-safety to your family. For regular deliveries, phone Bomont 993, Central 7490.

Summer Hotel Burned.
By the Associated Press.
INTERVAL, N. H., May 22.—Fire today destroyed the Intervale House, one of the well-known summer hotels of the White Mountains. The blaze is thought to have started from a fireplace.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Menthosulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Menthosulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Menthosulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Does it Get You This Way?—Relief is Here!

Acquaint yourself with Make-Man Tablets, the distinctive Iron Tonic. Try a box of these wonder tablets. They will build up and vitalize your system. Go to your druggist—get a 50 cent box. The box must bear trade mark, M. M. T. If your druggist cannot supply you, send direct to Make-Man Tablet Co., Distributors, 325 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The new ONE DOLLAR Size Make-Man package contains 2½ times as many tablets as does the 50c size—buy it for economy's sake.

You Ought To Feel Fine in May!
But You Can't Be Happy When Every Day Brings Nagging Backache, and Finds You Tired, Weak and All Worn Out.

IS that constant throbbing backache keeping you miserable? Do you feel old and slow; tired out and discouraged? Are you so lacking in strength and energy, you can't join the good times of friends and family?

Then you should be taking yourself in hand. May is too fine a month to be so miserable. You want to be well, and the first step to get well is to find out what is making you feel so badly.

Have you given any thought to your kidneys? Your health, you know, depends largely upon your kidneys. Without them you could not live a single day. When the kidneys weaken and fail to properly filter the blood, the whole system is poisoned. Your back aches, you are lame and stiff and suffer rheumatic pains and kindred irregularities; your head aches, you are dizzy, and feel tired, nervous, irritable and depressed.

Don't wait for some more serious kidney trouble. Get back your health, while you can. Delay may mean dropsy, gravel, or fatal Bright's disease. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills today! Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These St. Louis Folks:

PHILIP WOLFE.
2211 S. Jefferson Ave. says:
"I had kidney disorder. My back stiffened up, making it almost impossible to bend and there was a constant, severe pain across the small of it, which seemed to hold me down. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and have always found them to give me relief. I was a street car motorman for thirty-six years and know that brought on my trouble. For the past two years the benefit has been permanent so I believe Doan's have cured me."

MRS. J. LARRIEU.
2830 Shennandoah Ave.
"I suffered from kidney trouble and at times I thought my back would break. I couldn't rest or sleep and mornings felt tired and languid. There were times I could hardly walk, due to pain in my joints. Dizzy spells bothered me and I looked as if black specks floated before my eyes. I had seen Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and I used them. Doan's helped me and an occasional use keeps me free from any return of the trouble."

TROPHY AND $1000 FOR AIR RACE BY "JENNIES"

Flying Club of St. Louis Offers Award for 90-Horsepower Planes in October Meet.

Among the trophies to be awarded in the 1923 meet of the National Aeronautic Association, to be held at St. Louis Field Oct. 1-3, will be one by the Flying Club of St. Louis for 90-horsepower airplanes, most of which are of the J. N. type and commonly known as "Jennies".

This event is to be for civilian pilots only and, in addition to the trophy, the winner will receive a cash prize of $1000. The race will be over a 120-kilometer course (32.21 miles), or three times around a 32-mile course. It will be started at 11 a. m. Oct. 1. To equalize the chances of each contestant, the planes will be weighted to 340 pounds, the average equivalent of the weight of two passengers.

Hugh W. Robertson, assistant to President Howard E. Coffin of the National Aeronautic Association, arrived here yesterday from his home in Detroit to confer with B. F. Bush, director general of the air races for the St. Louis Air Board. He said Detroit was devoting considerable attention to commercial transportation by air and was planning a daily service for passengers and light express between Detroit, Toronto and Chicago. A similar service now is in operation between Detroit and Cleveland. St. Louis, he said, will be among the first cities to profit from aerial transportation, due to the fact it is among the first of the large cities to have their air races and establish a permanent field.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—Announcement has been made here by the National Aeronautic Association that three prizes of $100, $50 and $25 will be given for the best designs for a model airplane trophy to be competed for by boys at the international airplane races in St. Louis, next October. The contest is open to students of sculpture in accredited art schools and graduates of such schools since 1921.

B. H. Mulvihill, vice president of the Association, in making the announcement, suggested that local contests be held under the auspices of art school directors and that the best three designs be entered in the national contest, which will be judged at Washington. Models will be in clay and must be submitted by July 15.

The trophy for which a design is sought will be given in the Mulvihill contest for boys. This will be the first of its kind ever held and will bring together the winners of elimination contests throughout the country. Model airplanes submitted by the contestants will be flown for distance under official observation and regulation.

"The characteristic pose of a boy launching with his hands a tiny plane," said Mulvihill, "lends itself to an action design for a trophy that ought to develop some interesting and beautiful subjects."

THINK

Some of the most regular depositors in our great Savings Department are housewives, who, by careful and judicious management, not only are keeping up comfortable homes, but are laying by money for future emergencies.

The habit of spending wisely and saving steadily a portion of the family's income holds together the homes, educates the children, and so makes possible better future conditions.

FILM TO BE RUN FOR BENEFIT OF ICE FUND

First Showing Here of "Nanook of the North" Will Be at Pershing Saturday.

The first St. Louis showing of the film "Nanook of the North" will be made at the Pershing Theater next Saturday evening for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. The members of the St. Louis Motion Picture Council are sponsoring the production and plans are being made for a three week run. The percentage of the proceeds to accrue to the fund for the babies.

"Nanook of the North" is said by reviewers in cities where the feature has had long and successful runs to be the greatest story of the Eskimo ever filmed, thrilling in conception and with interest and heart-throbs to spare. It is wholly unlike anything that has ever been presented—a vivid and dramatic intimate glimpse into the lives of the North's inhabitants.

Work for Better Pictures. The St. Louis Motion Picture Council, which comprises delegates from every women's organization in the city, is working earnestly for the success of the fund, not only in behalf of the fund for the babies, but also because of its interest in better pictures. Since its recent organization, it has been devoting its efforts toward the arranging of reviews of every picture shown in St. Louis. This is the first picture to be endorsed by the reviewing committee, of which Mrs. D. O. Ives is chairman, and marks the beginning of active work for the betterment of motion pictures. Through the campaign has just begun, the interest throughout the city in better pictures is being manifested by a heavy advance sale of tickets for "Nanook." Numbers of children are selling tickets, and some schools are arranging to attend in a body, while several organizations have signified their intention of choosing evenings during the week of May 26 to attend in large delegations. At the opening program on Saturday evening Mayor Henry W. Kiel and others will be guests of honor. Short talks will be made by the Mayor and others, expressing their desire to co-operate with the Motion Picture Council and the Ice Fund. The admission charge for "Nanook of the North" will be 50c, including war tax.

Officers of the Council. Officers of the Motion Picture Council include: Mrs. Ira L. Bretzfelder, president; Mrs. Albert Spaulding, first vice-president; Mrs. John S. Payne, second vice-president; Mrs. Douglas Corner, secretary; Mrs. Thomas Ratcliffe, treasurer; Mrs. D. O. Ives, chairman reviewing committee; Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, delegate from National Motion Picture League; Mrs. Henry Hopkins, chairman children's matinees; Mrs. F. B. Eisenman, chairman membership committee; and Mrs. Alex Goodwin, chairman organization. The organizations represented on the council are: Federated Clubs of Missouri, Eighth District; Parent-Teachers Organization; League of Women Voters; Wednesday Club; Big Sisters; Catholic Women's League; Council of Jewish Women; Children's Aid; Women's Chamber of Commerce; College Club; Board of Religious Organizations; Young Women's Christian Association; Town Club; Instruction Department; Department of Public Welfare; Division of Parks and Recreation.

1,160,000 ENROLLED IN 8174 SCHOOLS IN THE PHILIPPINES

Public Institutions Total 7,641 and Employ 24,878 Teachers, 341 of Whom are Americans.

MANILA, May 1.—The Philippine Islands have a total of 8,174 schools, public and private, with an approximate enrollment of 1,160,000, according to the bureau of education and the superintendent of private schools. It is estimated that the Philippines have a population of 23,000,000 children of school age.

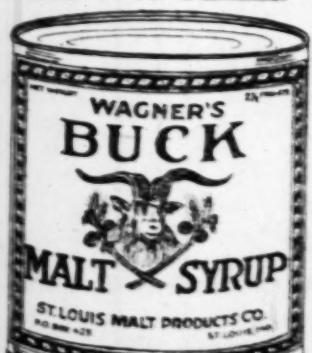

Public schools alone number 7,641 and attendance reached a total of 1,094,472 during the last year, while private schools number 532 and have an enrollment of 64,525.

Eighty-five per cent of the private schools in the Philippines are religious institutions, and only 15 per cent are secular. Seventy-seven per cent of the religious private schools are Catholic, while the remaining eight per cent are Protestant.

The public school system, in which English is taught, includes 24,878 teachers, 341 of whom are Americans.

DANDRUFF SOON DESTROYS THE HAIR
If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.
It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to smother the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

EXPLAINS RECREATION CUT IN SUMMER SCHOOL
McDonald Says This Work Is Not Strictly Part of School Curricula—Saving a Factor.

In explaining the Board of Education's discontinuance of manual training and recreational work in the public summer schools this year, Jesse McDonald, member of the Finance Committee in charge of recommendations for expenditures during the coming year, said yesterday that this instruction was not strictly a part of the work that should come under public school curricula.

It is also the Board's idea, he said, to keep its annual operating expenses as low as possible without losing in efficiency, and that the recreational work, therefore, was one of the items cut from the proposed budget. Superintendent Maddox had recommended its continuance.

82-Cent Tax This Year.

Elimination of this work is part of a budget cut which will reduce the school tax 3 cents on the $100 assessed valuation and, as has been told, with the elimination of the 3-cent levy formerly for the bonded debt sinking fund, the school tax for the coming year is to be 82 cents rather than 88 cents. The reduction in gross is estimated at approximately $600,000.

"The Board, I am certain, would like to see this recreational work continued were it possible," McDonald said. "However, we are trying to prevent the growth of our annual budget. We are now asking for 22 cents more than the 60-cent rate allowed by the law, and do not want to see our request to the citizens increase unless it is imperative."

"We have the money to continue recreational work this year, or we could find it. But we do not think this work essential. The academic courses will be better as usual."

Maddox's Statement.

Supt. Maddox said this work had been offered in the summer schools since 1910, with the exception of 1915, when the board did not make an appropriation for it.

"The Finance Committee has made no appropriation at this time for the work," he said. "A bulletin was sent to teachers April 17, advising those who were interested to apply for positions during the summer, but indicating no recreational work would be offered."

"The committee has indicated it will not place this work on the budget, and without the money to pay teachers, we, of course, cannot have the recreational or manual training classes," Supt. Maddox said. The saving amounts to about $65,000, the amount requested for maintenance. While this in itself is small enough, Richard Murphy, a board member and former chairman of the Finance Committee, said, it is one of numerous items which the board has seen fit to eliminate that the tax might be reduced.

Looking to Future.

"Each year the school expense grows," he said. "We have the money this year, perhaps, but it is to the future we must look. We have obtained an increase recently in our allowance, but a school tax vote may fail if we continue to ask for more money."

Murphy said he understood the children had been destructive in their class rooms, damaging desks and other property with hammer and saw, learning how to construct miniature houses and other things in manual training, and that this had an influence in the decision to eliminate the summer work.

A table of figures showing registration in the manual training and recreational work in summer schools began in 1910 shows an increase from 1789 in the first year to 12,115 last summer. The classes have been held each year with, as has been said, the exception of 1915.

"Playgrounds to Be Closed."

Supt. Maddox, deploring the loss of this recreational work, said that the school playgrounds would have to be closed. "We don't know them open without supervisors," he explained.

That the playgrounds around the graded schools are popular in all districts is evidenced by action taken at the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting at the Hamilton grade school, Hamilton and Westminster avenues, last night. From the association's treasury $600 was voted to equip the school's playground, and supervision will be made possible by an agreement with Park Commissioner Pape. This association also voted $200 for a supply of toys and soap for the Hamilton school, which is not furnished by the board.

McDonald also indicated an interest in the recreational work as such, and said he believed it a good thing but a part of child care outside the realm of the board's activities. "We are all for it," he repeated, "but do not think the board should pay for this."

Recreational work was offered in 20 schools last year, the enrollment approximately equalling that in academic courses. The children are given instruction in making things with their hands, the boys learning woodwork, the girls making dresses in sewing classes.

Courses in music, nature study, story telling and playground games have kept the youngsters busy during hot summer days. Objection was raised by the Education Committee of the St. Louis League of Women Voters to the proposed tax cut if it would curtail the school program. Board members then declared the reduction would not interfere with the program in any way.

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant.

You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that his bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children; they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from gripping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that everyone finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that answers in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Brenington of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blenden of Muskegon, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

HUSBAND AND WIFE IN MARATHON FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Elsie McGee, Who is Suing in New York, Learns McGee
Has Brought Action in Nevada.

By Leased Wire From the New York
Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The McGees—Elsie and William H. Jr.—who burst into print in June, 1932, when Mrs. McGee, who was Miss Elsie Walworth, filed suit for divorce and her husband countered with charges about an army officer whom he said he "kicked out of the house," are running a legal race to determine which can first produce a divorce decree or separation action against the other.

This was revealed yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Davis was appealed to by Osborne and Ettinger, Mrs. McGee's counsel. The lawyers produced an affidavit from Mrs. McGee, which said in part:

"I have just learned that my husband, with a woman companion, has gone to Ely, Nev., where—in White Pine County—he has begun suit for a decree of divorce against me, alleging cruelty. I therefore petition this honorable court to advance my case on the calendar.

Reason for the Haste.
"Under the court rules of Nevada, I understand, I have 40 days in which to appear and defend, before trial. I desire to get a decree from this court to produce in Nevada, to prove his abandonment of me."

Mrs. McGee's 40 days "of grace" will end June 14. Justice Davis put down the separation suit for trial here May 25, just 20 days earlier. When Mrs. McGee filed her suit last year here she charged her husband with neglect and abandonment. He was named as a member of the insurance firm of W. H. McGee & Co., William McGee, who is a veteran of the Royal British Air Force, lived with his parents at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Wastvogel then ordered him to pay $70 a week alimony and $500 counsel fees.

In his counter allegations McGee alleged that he had found an American artillery officer and his wife drinking in his apartment in Brooklyn and that on one occasion he "kicked out of the house" the said officer.

Incident Narrated by Husband.
In April, 1932, he said he returned unexpectedly from Chicago and found his apartment door double locked. As to that incident he alleged:

"My wife came to the door and opened it. She was in negligee and a night robe. She embraced me, saying she was glad I was home. But when I attempted to go to the bathroom she restrained me, begging me not to go, and keeping her arm around my neck.

"I had observed that there was a man's hat and coat on the chair, and in the bathroom I found the army officer. I tried to lock him in, but my wife resisting with him, I was unable to do so. He left the apartment and I cut up the clothing that he left behind."

McGee said that he forgave his wife at that time, but said he subsequently found she was frequently in telephonic communication with the officer. He left the apartment, and did not return.

The McGees have no children. Mrs. McGee denied the accusation of her husband that she refused to rear a family. She was residing with her mother on Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, when the suit was begun.

PRESIDENT SAID TO FAVOR
MISSOURI RIVER BARGE LINE

Congressman Roach, Inspecting
Route, Declares Kansas City, St.
Louis Project Would Be Success.

By the Associated Press.
BUCKNER, Mo., May 23.—A project for making navigable the Missouri river between Kansas City and St. Louis is favored by President Harding, Sydney C. Roach, congressman from Linn Creek, Mo., said here last night.

Roach is one of the party of men interested in the development of the Missouri river, who started yesterday in a United States snag boat from Kansas City for inspection of the river to his mouth.

"I had a conference with President Harding just before I left Washington," Roach asserted, "and he assured me of his support in a barge line project. A channel from Kansas City to St. Louis will not cost any more than the one from St. Louis to New Orleans did, and it will pay in the end."

"The barge line from St. Louis to New Orleans, organized upon completion of the channel in the Mississippi river cost $4,000,000, he declared.

"In a few months it was paying 7 1/2 per cent on the capital invested, and was setting aside 2 per cent, for depreciation.

"A similar line on the Missouri would be equally successful, I should think."

French Fine Germans in Dollars.

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, May 23.—Fines in dollars instead of marks are being levied by the military authorities as punishment for sabotage and other offenses against the occupation forces. The city of Dortmund was fined $345 for destroying telephone and telegraph wires; it refused to pay, and the French seized 15,000-000 marks. The town of Lennep has been fined $152 because 15 shots were fired into the station some nights ago, nobody being injured.

Four Killed in Powder Blast.
By the Associated Press.
BISBEE, Ariz., May 22.—Four men were killed yesterday when three mixing houses at the plant of the Apache Powder Co. at Curris, Ariz., were blown up. One man was injured. The cause of the blast has not been determined. No trace has been found of any of the bodies. The men killed were working in two of the mixing houses when the blast occurred.

UNIFORMS FOR COUNTY DEPUTIES ARE FAVORED

Officials Agree on Need of
Some Identification to Block
Offender's Pleas.

Uniforms for St. Louis County deputies, as a measure to preclude the plea of "I didn't know he was an officer," frequently advanced in cases ranging down from murderers who thought the deputy was a robber and shot him, to speeders who thought the same thing and drove faster, are favored by the Sheriff, Circuit Judges and Prosecuting Attorney, who were questioned yesterday by a Post-Dispatch reporter.

Six law-enforcement officers of the County have been killed in less than three years, including Deputy Constable Edward Poulsen, who was shot to death in Jennings last Sunday morning. In some of these cases, notably the C-rner and Conrey murders of August, 1930, at Clayton, alleged failure of the officers to identify themselves succinctly has been one of the strong points for the defense.

It would be the best thing in the world, Prosecuting Attorney Jones said, if the suggestion should say that all the Sheriff's and Constable's deputies should have uniforms, except the special officers whose work is that of detectives. "I believe that there is no provision in law for such a measure. The deputies would have to agree among themselves upon a uniform, and would have to pay for it. Most of them know that inability to establish their identity immediately and unquestionably as officers undoubtedly has made trouble. The practice of advancing the alibi that I thought he was a stick-up man ought to be stopped."

A Deputy Sheriff who was present at one of the interviews said that uniforms would be no financial burden, because the work of deputies on the road requires special clothes, anyway.

Circuit Judge McElhinney said he had never considered the idea, but that an obvious need existed for some better means of identifying officers making an arrest, especially on the road at night. He also referred to the absence of a provision for uniform in the law, and remarked that in smaller counties, of course, where everybody knew the Sheriff, no such provision was needed.

Circuit Judge Wurdeman said that deputies "by all means" should have uniforms, or at least uniform caps or something to distinguish them besides the badges, which are not always conspicuous, especially when the officer is in an automobile. "Just the other day," he said, "two young fellows who were in court for speeding at 2 or 3 a. m. and had tried to escape from the officer, said that they thought he was trying to hold them up. If the deputy had been in uniform that plea couldn't have been made."

Sheriff Willmann said he had opposed the proposition so far as it covered those of his men, whose investigations require that they be unknown, and in raids and process serving, where a uniformed officer would be dodged. "When I was Marshal of University City I had part of the force in uniform and part in plain clothes," he said, "because part of the work required plain clothes. The night riders' sound attached to this office does not touch speeding. We don't have 10 speeding cases a month. But motorcycle officers and others who make arrests for speeding should have uniforms."

It will be recalled that the city motorcycle squad for similar reasons was put in uniform some time ago. Detectives of the automobile night riders have suggested that police automobiles be equipped with a light on the fender to show the word "police" when a driver is commanded to pull in to the curb, so that no misapprehension of a holdup could arise.

Bryan and Bank Personalities On Da

"Steam Rolled," Says John Willis Baer Appeal to "Re

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 22.—With only one dissenting voice, the Hills and Overtures Committee of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. today rejected the overture to the Philadelphia Presbytery protesting against the doctrine preached by Harry Emerson Fosdick. As a result, the committee recommended to the general assembly that New York Presbytery, which is investigating the Fosdick case, be asked to submit its findings to the assembly next year. The Rev. Gordon MacLennan of Philadelphia submitted a minority report demanding that the assembly direct the New York Presbytery to "take such action as will require the preaching and teaching in the First Presbyterian Church of New York to conform to the system of doctrines taught in the confession of faith."

The Fosdick case grew out of a sermon, "Shall the Fundamentalists Win?" preached by Dr. Fosdick, Baptist minister, in the pulpit of the New York church on May 21, 1923. The assembly rejected a committee report on an overture introduced by the League of Nations and submitted for it a resolution by the Rev. Murray Howland of Buffalo, N. Y., urging American membership in the world court, as proposed by President Harding.

William Jennings Bryan, fundamentalist leader, smarting under the reverse suffered yesterday in the hands of the liberalist element when a resolution he had prepared which would have prohibited teaching of the theory of evolution in Presbyterian schools, was defeated by a vote of approximately 2 to 1 to plan to renew his attacks.

Commenting on the action of the assembly in adopting a substitute resolution offered by John Willis Baer, a liberalist, Bryan charged that the assembly was controlled by a liberal machine and that his resolution had been steamrolled by a group of church politicians.

At the close of debate over Bryan's resolution the assembly adopted a substitute resolution offered by John Willis Baer of Pasadena, which in mild terms directed synods and presbyteries to withhold their official approval from educational institutions which any teaching or instruction is given which seeks to establish a materialistic evolutionary philosophy of life or which disregards or attempts to discredit the Christian faith.

The fundamentalists under Bryan's leadership went down fighting in the most bitterly waged struggle in the General Assembly has seen, according to church historians, since Charles A. Briggs of Union Theological Seminary was unseated more than 30 years ago because his Old Testament criticisms.

Exchange of Personalities. In the final fight it was laymen against laymen, with Bryan again Baer in a debate that even reached an exchange of personalities. Baer, a California banker, and the layman who has ever held the office of moderator, is chairman of the Committee on Education, which rejected the Bryan resolution in report. Bryan is vice chairman of the committee.

The argument reached personal

ROME, May 22.—Pope Pius XI delivered an allocution at a secret consistory today in which he deplored the struggles in Ireland, the situation in the Ruhr and even in Russia. He said he would continue to do everything possible to alleviate the sufferings of the world. The religious demonstrations that occurred in Italy and throughout the world on the occasion of the Eucharistic congress had rejoiced him, the pontiff said. He expressed satisfaction over the reception of the Holy Eucharist.

His holiness added that the success of the missionary exhibition, to be held in the Vatican in 1925 in celebration of the Holy year of Jubilee seemed to be assured. The pontiff after referring to the situation in the Near East and that Catholic Germany who, deploring the continued suffering of its people, passed to the situation in the West. He deplored the disorder he still found affecting areas in England and Ireland. "Our paternal eyes," said Mr. Hollman, "see in the crowd of our children, beloved for various reasons by the Holy Apostolic See, the children of the Holy Spirit."

Bryan and Banker Exchange
Personalities in Debate
On Darwinism Resolution

"Steam Rolled," Says Commoner, Who Tells John Willis Baer He Doesn't Want Any Appeal to "Republican Prejudices."

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 23.—With only one dissenting voice, the Bills and Overtures Committee of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. today rejected the overture from the Philadelphia Presbytery protesting against the doctrines preached by Harry Emerson Fosdick. As a substitute, the committee recommended to the general assembly, scheduled for the New York Presbytery, which is now investigating the Fosdick case, be asked to submit its findings to the assembly next year. The Rev. A. Gordon MacLennan of Philadelphia submitted a minority report, maintaining that the assembly direct the New York Presbytery to "take such action as will require the preaching and teaching in the First Presbyterian Church of New York to conform to the system of doctrines taught in the confession of faith."

The Fosdick case grew out of a sermon, "Shall the Fundamentalists Win?" preached by Dr. Fosdick, a Baptist minister, in the pulpit of the New York church on May 21, 1922. The assembly rejected a committee report on an overture endorsing the League of Nations and substituting it for a resolution by the Rev. Murray Howland of New York, urging American membership in the world court, as proposed by President Harding.

William Jennings Bryan, fundamentalist leader, starting under the reverse, suffered yesterday at the hands of the liberalist element when a resolution he had prepared, which would have prohibited teaching of the theory of evolution in Presbyterian schools, was defeated by a vote of approximately 2 to 1, planned to renew his attacks on Darwinism at today's session.

Commenting on the action of the assembly in adopting the resolution offered by John Willis Baer, a liberalist, Bryan charged that the assembly was controlled by a liberal machine and that his resolution had been steamrolled by a group of church politicians.

At the close of debate over the Baer resolution the assembly adopted a substitute resolution offered by John Willis Baer of Pasadena, which in its terms directed synods and presbyteries to withhold their official approval from educational institutions "where any teaching or instruction is given which seeks to establish a materialistic evolutionary philosophy of life or which disregards or attempts to discredit the Christian faith."

The fundamentalists under Bryan's leadership went down fighting in the most bitterly waged struggle the General Assembly has seen, according to church historians, since Charles A. Briggs of Union Theological Seminary was unfrocked more than 30 years ago because of his Old Testament criticisms.

Exchange of Personalities.
In the final fight it was layman Baer in a debate that even reached an exchange of personalities. Baer, a California banker, and the only layman who has ever held the office of moderator, chairman of the Committee on Education, which had rejected the Bryan resolution in its report. Bryan is vice chairman of the committee.

The argument reached personalities when Baer, presenting his resolution, declared Bryan "is as honest as I can be—but is mistaken, as he has been before."

"I want to object to the statement of Brother Baer," the Commoner said, when the assembly granted him 15 minutes to reply. "I don't want my Democratic friends to use this cause. I don't want any Republican to appeal to Republican prejudices by referring to my Democratic beliefs."

"Helped Get Prohibition."

"It helped this nation get prohibition. Did you do any more, Brother Baer? Was I mistaken in that fight? I helped this nation get woman's suffrage. Did you do any more than I, and was I mistaken then? I want you to know I have been engaged in eight great national reforms in the last 25 years. Was I mistaken in those issues?"

A rising vote was taken on the question of substituting Baer's resolution for Bryan's and the evolutionists apparently were in the majority by more than 2 to 1. On the question of final adoption only one dissenting voice was heard.

Defeat on the question of evolution followed a day of successes for Bryan and his followers in the assembly. They won three victories, the first when the delegates adopted his resolution requesting every minister, church official, church members and the faculties and students of Presbyterian schools to sign the pledge of total abstinence. The assembly also reiterated its policy that no part of the educational funds shall go to any school employing a constructor who is not a Christian and voted to urge State officials to prohibit attacks on the Christian religion by instructors in State universities and colleges.

Minority Reports.
The educational committee had declined to approve the layman's resolution, offered by the Rev. Thomas W. Moore, professor of Systematic Theology, at San Francisco Theological Seminary, and likewise rejected the Bryan resolution. The committee both were brought in by their authors as minority reports.

The Commoner spoke for nearly an hour, ridiculing the Darwinian theory.

Darwin, he said, traces his hypothetical evolution of life, "until it branches off in two stems, old world monkeys and new world monkeys, and he says he is descended from old world monkeys—he won't even let us spring from American monkeys."

Teaching of Evolution Condemned
By the Cumberland Presbyterians.
FAIRFIELD, Ill., May 23.—The teaching of evolution was condemned in a resolution adopted at the concluding session yesterday of the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Adoption of the resolution, which was drafted by a special committee of former moderators of the church, was followed by applause and statements by commissioners against the theory.

The eighteenth amendment was defended, and all forms of Sunday amusements, including moving picture shows, baseball and automobile racing, were opposed in the reports of the committees on temperance and Sabbath observance, which were adopted.

POPE PIUS DEPLORES SITUATION IN EUROPE

Touches on Strife in Ireland and Executions in Russia in Allocution.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, May 23.—Pope Pius delivered an allocution at a secret consistory today in which he deplored the struggles in Ireland, the situation in the Ruhr and events in Russia. He said he would continue to do everything possible to alleviate the sufferings of the world.

The religious demonstrations that occurred in Italy and throughout the world on the occasion of the Eucharistic congress had rejoiced him, the pontiff said. He expressed satisfaction over the reception of his first encyclical.

His holiness added that the success of the missionary exhibition to be held in the Vatican in 1925 in celebration of the Holy year of Jubilee seemed to be assured.

The pontiff after referring to the sad situation in the Near East and that Catholic Germany who, despite depicting the continued suffering of its people, passed the situation in the West. He deplored the discord he still found affecting groups in England and Ireland.

"Our paternal eyes," said his holiness, "in the crowd of consubstantials some among the best of our children, beloved for various reasons by this Holy Apostolic See."

"We see the children of the Island of Saints (Ireland) also the children of the Island of Angels (England) the children of the church's first born (France) and the children of her defection of four centuries ago, has always known."

Despite these sad events, he added, the relief work undertaken by the holy see to alleviate the distress of the Russian people would not cease.

The pontiff concluded by imparting the apostolic benediction.

Two new cardinals were created by the Pope. They are: Monsignor Luigi Sincero, assessor of the consistorial congregation, and Monsignor Giovanni Battista Naselli, archbishop of Bologna.

The pontiff preconized a number of archbishops and bishops, most of whom had already been appointed by brief.

PLANS APPROVED FOR FIRST DES PERES WORK

Mile Section, Between Lindenwood and Southwest Avenues,
To Be Constructed.

Construction of the River des Peres sewer and storm water channel, 13 miles in length, for which a bond issue of $11,000,000 was voted last February, will be started this summer with a section, one mile in length, between Lindenwood and Southwest avenues.

Plans for this section, which will cost approximately $500,000, were approved yesterday by the Board of Public Service and an ordinance authorizing the work and appropriation will be prepared for introduction in the Board of Aldermen.

Another section of the sewer through Forest Park, to cost $500,000, and a bridge over the River des Peres at Gravois avenue, to cost $115,000, are included in the program of bond issue work for the year, recently approved by the Citizens' Supervisory Committee.

Subcommittee Appears.
A subcommittee of the Supervisory Committee appeared before the board yesterday to ask if a $50,000 item for a manual training shop at Bellefontaine farm for boys could be included in this year's program. The board stated that the program could not be amended, because of other plans being under way, but said the item would be provided if funds were available to the end of the year.

President Kinsey, Director of Public Utilities, Hooke and Director of Streets and Sewers, also were expected the route selected for the northeastern railroad approach to the free bridge. In a recent survey they were accompanied by Frank H. Gerhart, an advocate of the approach, for which a bond issue of $1,500,000 was voted.

The route will be referred to the Board of Public Service for approval and an ordinance will be prepared directing condemnation of the route, 60 feet in width and 22,400 feet in length.

Estimates of Cost.
Engineers have estimated the approach will cost greatly in excess of the $1,500,000 voted, the estimates ranging from $2,500,000, exclusive of site, to $5,000,000. This has resulted in discord within the Board of Public Service and the Taxpayers' Association, one of the chief backers of the approach.

Several members, including Gerhart, have declared the approach should be kept with the feature of English social life. That is the unprecedented unemployment, which has continued ever since the business collapse in the latter part of 1920. American know that the crash was it. The point is that the United States has recovered, England has not.

The normal rate of unemployment of British trade union memberships, which is not more than 10 per cent, averages 4 per cent. During the last two years unemployment of trade union members has varied between 13 and 22 per cent. Unorganized workers have suffered more. The Government, to prevent wholesale starvation, has been compelled to expend hundreds of millions in doles. Only by this means has it been possible to avert civil commotion.

FEDERAL DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Posts Go to Carroll W. Harlan and Prosecute W. F. (Whitey) Doering.
Carroll W. Harlan of 5565 Cates avenue yesterday was appointed Assistant United States Attorney here, following a conference between District Attorney Curry and Assistant Attorney-General Rush Holland at the Federal Building. Harlan took up his duties immediately.

William J. Blesse, who was appointed special assistant in the office during the incumbency of James E. Carroll, was reappointed. Eustace C. Wheeler, resigned.

Horace L. Dyer, who was an assistant in the office during the term of his father, Judge D. P. Dyer, district attorney, was appointed as special counsel to prosecute the indictment against William F. (Whitey) Doering and others growing out of the robbery of a mail truck on the downtown streets two months ago.

GEPHART SEES COMMON BUYING

Tells of Co-Operative Spirit of Farmers at Address in Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 23.—The co-operative spirit among farmers is developing and the time is coming when farmers will not only sell but buy in common, according to W. F. Gephart, St. Louis banker, in an address yesterday on agricultural credits before the Southern Commercial Secretaries' Association, convention here.

Farmers need better prices for their products rather than more credit to operate their farms, the speaker declared. Asserting that farmers resented the encroachment of railroads, Gephart said: "A country which has 52,000,000 men, women and children living happily and comfortably on farms need not worry very much about the growth of bolshevism."

Millions Paid Out By Government to Prevent Starvation—Set-back for Unions as

The following is one of a series on the British Labor Party, written by John L. Balderston, London correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
LONDON.—In the first of this series the rapid rise of the British Labor Party to its present position as the second power in the state was indicated. How can such a social and political phenomenon in a traditionally conservative country be explained?

Before discussing in succeeding articles the concrete policies with which labor appeals to the nation, I will attempt to sketch the background of English social life in this troubled period. Without some knowledge of conditions here, labor's recent successes and hopes and fears for the future cannot be understood. In the last two years 7,000,000 workers in Great Britain have sustained total wage reductions in their weekly full time pay amounting to $3,000,000,000 a year. These figures are official and do not include agricultural workers, domestic servants, public employees or part time workers of any kind.

What Party Leaders Claim.
It is claimed by Labor party spokesmen that these wage cuts have brought down the standard of living considerably below that obtaining in 1914.

Any man whose pay envelope has been milked and whose little comforts of the post-war boom have been curtailed feels disgruntled. He is inclined to lend an ear to orators who tell him the rich are better off than they were because the interest on their war bonds represents twice as much purchasing power as three years ago, and that investments purchased with depreciated currency now earn in real value twice the interest that they did in 1919.

But the general wage reductions do not cover the most serious feature of English social life. That is the unprecedented unemployment, which has continued ever since the business collapse in the latter part of 1920. American know that the crash was it. The point is that the United States has recovered, England has not.

The normal rate of unemployment of British trade union memberships, which is not more than 10 per cent, averages 4 per cent. During the last two years unemployment of trade union members has varied between 13 and 22 per cent. Unorganized workers have suffered more. The Government, to prevent wholesale starvation, has been compelled to expend hundreds of millions in doles. Only by this means has it been possible to avert civil commotion.

Program of Labor.

All this is grist for the labor mill. Such a state of affairs goes far to explain the unprecedented drift to the Labor party in the recent general election. This drift has been more marked in by-elections, which the voters discovered that Bonar Law's Tory Government had no remedy for the present distressing conditions.

But they count upon the bankruptcy of Parliamentary Labor soon after its first Government is formed. They count that the working force, of capitalist society, the House of Lords, the Courts, the Throne and the great Government departments, will hamstring a Labor Government at every turn, and make it impossible for any part of the Labor program to become effective. Then, they think, will come a great revulsion of feeling toward the workers in favor of direct action.

The present, these extremists say, is no time for industrial strife. Trade union treasuries are empty. There are too many unemployed waiting to take the places of men who go out.

But they count upon the bankruptcy of Parliamentary Labor soon after its first Government is formed. They count that the working force, of capitalist society, the House of Lords, the Courts, the Throne and the great Government departments, will hamstring a Labor Government at every turn, and make it impossible for any part of the Labor program to become effective. Then, they think, will come a great revulsion of feeling toward the workers in favor of direct action.

The next article will describe the political and economic issues now uppermost in Great Britain, together with the policy of the Labor party for dealing with them.

for an extension of credit," urged a business policy of "considerable caution."

GEN. WOOD ISSUES DENIAL.
Says Congressmen Did Not Share Independence Fund.

RUHR OCCUPATION
PREMIERS TO CONFER

Theunis and Poincare to Discuss Program; French Figures on What Germany Has Paid.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, May 23.—Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspars of Belgium are expected to arrive next Sunday or Monday for another conference with Premier Poincare in regard to the allied program in the Ruhr.

The Chamber of Deputies was started yesterday by the proposition advanced by the radical Deputy, Alfred Margaine, that Germany be dismembered. The Ruhr occupation, Margaine declared, would never prove profitable, and the only way to bring Germany to terms and assure French security would be to separate Prussia from the rest of Germany.

The rest of the Chamber did not appear to regard Margaine's apprehensions very seriously, but gave close attention to Louis Dubois, former president of the Reparations Commission, who went over the whole history of Germany's resistance and recounted the many concessions made by the allies.

The occasion of his remarks was a debate on the appropriations for the expenses of the occupation of the Ruhr, the Chamber being asked to vote credits for this purpose totaling 145,000,000 francs. The debate will be resumed on Thursday.

M. Dubois said Germany's claim that she had paid 45,000,000 gold marks in reparations was 37,000,000,000 too much. The total German payments in cash and kind, he declared, were 8,000,000,000 gold marks (about $2,000,000,000), of which France had received 143,000,000 marks in cash and 1,630,000,000 in kind.

If France's payments for coal and the cost of the occupation of the Ruhr, Rhineland were included, her outlay has been greater than her receipts, so she actually had received nothing from Germany on the reparation account.

Germany Begins Seriously to Discuss Joining the League.
Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Publishing Co., New York.
BERLIN.—The Post-Dispatch.

Germany is seriously discussing joining the League of Nations. Little is printed on the subject, as only Helmut von Gerlach has the courage to advocate it publicly in the present violent nationalistic state of mind prevailing here. Austria's success under the league and the League's real international character, as it is regarded here, have impressed those who know.

It is not likely Germany would join as long as Chancellor Cuno and Foreign Minister von Rosen are directing Germany's policy, but unless a bargain is successfully negotiated over reparations within a fortnight, they are not likely to remain. Cuno can only make another offer if big industry permits him, and industry is playing its own game. However, it develops that industry, especially the Stinnes group, is showing a willingness to pledge a fourth or a fifth of their property to the state as a basis for reparations' guarantees and a general cleaning up of the state's finances.

For this willingness has a string attached to it. The industrialists want the state to turn over to private capital all the railroads and telegraphs—the old scheme at which Stinnes has been hammering two years.

MAYOR KIEL TO HEAD AD CLUB DELEGATION TO ATLANTIC CITY

100 Delegates Register to Make Trip on Special Train—Session to Be Held June 3 to 7.

More than 100 advertising men of St. Louis have made reservations with the Advertising Club headquarters at Hotel Statler for the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World to be held June 2 to 7 at Atlantic City.

Arrangements have been made for radio equipment to be installed on a special train on which the trip will be made and the concerts of the Post-Dispatch broadcasting station will be picked up all the way to the Atlantic coast.

Mayor Kiel and Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the St. Louis club, will head the delegation from this city. There will be hand concerts, movie shows and dancing en route. The "special" will depart Saturday, June 2, at noon, from Union Station and arrive at Atlantic City Sunday, June 3, 2 p. m.

CITY AND WABASH, ONCE IN ACCORD ON CROSSING PLAN,
SET AT ODDS BY TRIVIALITIESIn 1912, Under Receivership, Road Agreed on Track-Depression Method as Desired by Municipality.

The city and the Wabash Railroad, which now are at loggerheads over the method of elimination of the railroad's grade crossing at Delmar boulevard, once were in perfect accord that the crossing should go, that the method should be as the city has desired—by depression of the tracks—and that construction should proceed at once.

That was in 1912. Before the formality of an agreement could be consummated, however, trivialities were permitted to creep in, destroy the harmony and set the city and railroad upon their 11-year wrangle, which the railroad now threatens to make interminably by dragging it through the courts, even to the court of last resort.

Nor does further negotiation, as initiated by the Chamber of Commerce, seem potent. The city's plan for depression of tracks and the road's plan for their elevation are diametrically opposed and however eager both sides may be to yield without complete surrender, it seems an engineering impossibility to reconcile the two plans without destroying the basic principle of one.

St. Louis Men as Receivers.
The period of agreement in 1912 came about through the fortuitous passing of the road under receivership into the management of three receivers, two of them citizens of St. Louis, and the third, as Mayor Kreismann said at the time, "now virtually a citizen by his business association and interest."

The first two were W. K. Bixby, capitalist, and E. B. Pryor, president of the State National Bank. The third was F. A. Delano, who had been president of the road. He objected. The subject of grade elimination had been a subject of some perfunctory, unsuccessful negotiation between the city and the road. The receivers of Bixby and Pryor into its control was seized upon as a time favorable to the city's best interest for reopening negotiations.

There was a meeting on Jan. 31, 1912. The three receivers were present. The Mayor and the city engineers were present. The meeting was under the auspices of the Board of Public Service. It was not an open one, but its minutes state at City-Hall to throw light on what transpired.

All three of the receivers talked. Bixby is recorded as saying that the railroad engineers had preferred to elevate the tracks, but a citizen, he was ready to agree to anything that was fair. "If the city will meet us in the same way, there will be no difficulty in bringing it about," he added, suggesting the railroad and city engineers get together on a plan.

Delano seconded what Bixby had said. Pryor talked in the same vein, but added that the city ought to pay the consequential damages. The general tone of the conference was that the receivers were St. Louisans and sympathized with the effort to get rid of the grade crossings in proximity to Forest Park.

President Reber of the Board of Public Service, asked how soon work could proceed. "The reply was the summer of that year."

The following March 7, the engineers of the city and the railroad conferred. As now recalled by E. R.

Bowen, engineer for the Board of Public Service, when the feasibility of depression was broached, the railroad took the stand that it could not tolerate a grade of less than 49 feet at Union boulevard. The city thereupon stood its feet in its plan and it has stood there to this day.

The greatest discussion at the time was not over the plan of depression, but upon the division of costs. It was finally agreed in conference that the road should pay about $1,000,000, representing the construction costs, and the city should pay $75,000, representing the consequential damages. An ordinance was drafted with these provisions of cost, but was specified as to method of elimination.

Ordinance Failed to Pass.
The ordinance failed to pass. Zealots for the public interest in one branch of the House of Delegates broke up the co-operative spirit in which negotiations were progressing by killing the ordinance on the ground that the city should pay nothing and that the road should stand consequential damages as well as cost of construction.

However, harmony was restored in conference again and a second ordinance was drafted. It provided for the elimination of the grade crossings by the depression plan and it passed. It carried a clause that it was to be effective if signed by the railroad within 30 days after approval.

The railroad did not accept it within the time specified. Engineer Bowen of the city recalls that the reason was one thing. Bixby recalls a different one and Pryor a third. Bowen says that a few days before the time for approval was to expire he telephoned to Bixby. Bixby replied, Bowen recalls, that he had been busy with the dedication of Jefferson Memorial and had not sought the necessary court permission. The remaining time was too short to get that permission.

Bixby does not recall that incident. His impression after these years is that the railroad was not interested. He cannot recall more specifically.

Pryor's Explanation.
Pryor's explanation stands in the record of his testimony at the recent hearings before the Missouri Public Service Commission. He said that after the agreement had been reached the city tried to saddle the road with an additional $25,000 expenditure for a culvert to carry the River des Peres. He objected, he said, because the charge was not a proper one in work of grade correction.

Bowen on this point calls attention to a specific provision of the agreement ordinance which he declares covered that obligation on the part of the railroad.

Be that as it may, the road did not accept the ordinance. Whether the reason was the neglect of Bixby while engaged on other matters, or the unwillingness of Pryor to expend $25,000, or the unreadiness of the city, or any or all were relatively trivial.

Had the agreement, which quite evidently did exist for a time in 1912 been maintained, it is a reasonable reflection that in this year not only Delmar crossing but eight others near or entering the park would have been eliminated. Instead, there is the prospect of further lockups of horns and a fight to the finish, with the chief sufferers the increasing population in the vicinity who traverse the crossing.

FOCH REPORTS ON FRENCH EASTERN ALLIESDeclares Poland Has Imposing
Army and Czechoslovakians
Have Technical Knowledge.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News.

PARIS, May 23.—At the conclusion of his recent trip to Poland and Czechoslovakia, Marshal Foch makes the following declarations:

"Russia, even supposing it desires to attack Poland, will not be very redoubtable for a few years more at least. As for Germany, she would not dare undertake a war against an ally of France, not for a long time, anyway."

"In Poland one senses a magnificent vitality. The country is organizing itself. Economic progress is considerable, according to British and American I met there. There is similar progress in the country's interior politics. The Poles are turning their backs on dreams of expansion. They understand fully that their efforts must be directed toward digesting what is already inside their frontiers."

pooling force and could align a respectable number of divisions, either in the east or in the west, in case of danger.

"Many persons have dared to say that Poland would be a source of weakness rather than of strength to France. Even now this is false. Czechoslovakia also has a good army created entirely by herself. The Czechs had farther to go than the Poles, for they had nothing at the start and Poland had a framework. The result is striking. It is agreeable to think that French efforts were able to contribute to this work."

"The Czechs are less brilliant perhaps than the Poles, but they have a profound technical knowledge. Everything they do is perfect to the last detail. This new country is well governed and exhibits an orderly activity as it would do if it were a century old."

"The Czechs are attentive to what goes on in Hungary and in Romania. I do not say from prejudice that one should be suspicious of Hungary, but she must be watched closely for a few years more. Sentiments of revenge are fermenting there. Hungarians are not resigned to the new state of things and our friends there are sometimes carried. It would be an exaggeration to speak of real danger there, but a firm and prudent policy is necessary."

"One cannot travel in either Poland or Czechoslovakia without feeling that there already exist in Europe forces sufficient to insure the successful defense of the peace treaties."

What They Fought For.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THERE is little doubt among thinkers of my school that America eventually will execute some plan to make the world a better, happier, peaceful place in which to live. The urge is insistent. It is but a vaster glowing of the spirit which moved a legendary idealist to stir our various camps of gypsy horse traders with a truth-in-advertising campaign. Looking upon the international situation as he looked upon his narrow prospect, we see something should be done. That the remedy lies within the mighty power of this nation, with its Senators, luncheon speakers and European tourists, is almost universally believed.

Since the war this belief has become a conviction in many quarters. There were our doughboys fighting side by side with Englishmen, Frenchmen and Belgians. They quarreled more readily with the English at first, but soon, assimilating French with great ease, were on equally bad terms with the polliwogs.

Back home, it was not enough for America to know her sons had gone forth to die for America. That purpose did not seem grandly consecrated. We got the vision. In the words of the President, we fought to make the world safe for democracy. As each American sprang over the top he carried with him a mental map of the world. This campaign successful, he reasoned, faintly that the nation's New Hebrides would know no system of caste, no artificial mark of rank, and a man might sign the name Isaac to any hotel register in the United States.

A few American states failed to grasp the principle of human brotherhood. It is true. For them, as they endured mud and lice and shrapnel, snip memories comforted.

For them no lofty sweep of world civilization, of commercial systems, dependent on foreign trade, of campaign orators and newspaper services, their ties to earth were precious pin points, their tiny struggles fixed desperately on insignificant loves. The power that made oceans wide and mountains high and mankind level to small places did not yet give them the broader consciousness. They fought for a patch of earth and a vaguer national boundary about it and but dimly felt the world's circumference now as small as any Congressman's hair.

Consequently and in view of all these things it is time for America to take her place among the nations of the earth.

Uncle Sam's Future.

It is within the power of the United States to straighten out the European tangle. Why doesn't good old Uncle Sam do something? He showed himself such a great humanitarian when it came to loaning money and sending munitions over there. Is Uncle only a cold-blooded money grabber?

H. C.

More Law!

MURDERS, highway robberies and general holdups have recently become so numerous that practically every private citizen in these United States feels somewhat apprehensive in walking the public highways on any evening after dark. In fact, if you carry any substantial sum of money, it is dangerous to even venture along the public highways in broad daylight. If this condition could be remedied by the Government, certainly the Government owes no higher duty to its citizens than to remedy this condition. In plain speaking, the Government in allowing the license to be issued to a pistol manufacturer is planting the seed of murder. I trust you will not think me too candid in saying that believe the millions of manufacturers of firearms are so powerful that present laws have become extremely lax.

I suggest that the Government set a day to call in all pistols and stop the manufacture of same, and possibly all firearms should be included; make it a penitentiary offense for anyone that fails to comply with the law; let all necessary firearms for police duty, etc., be under the Government supervision in the manufacture and distribution of same, with a registration system, so that the responsibility may be placed upon the proper parties for each and every such firearm coming into the hands of any citizen.

I have been seriously working on this matter for a period of over three years, and each day makes me feel more positive that, eventually, some such action by the Government will have to be taken. The man who sponsors this movement will have to be a man of the highest moral character, brave and fearless in the face of the tremendous opposition which will be exerted by the millionaire manufacturers of firearms, making their principal living off the murdering of our citizens and the holding up of the public streets of our men, women and children.

J. H. DOUGHERTY.

AN UNSOUND RULING.

Justice Brandeis, whose dissenting opinion in the Southwestern Bell Telephone case was concurred in by Justice Holmes, clearly analyzes the decision of the Supreme Court and pronounces it legally and economically unsound.

Capital embarked in the enterprise is the true basis of valuation of public utility properties for rate-making purposes, according to the dissenting Judges. Valuation on the basis of the present cost of replacement, wherein the factors are wages, prices of materials and other construction costs, is a variable and uncertain standard, and its adoption may be as unfair to the company owning the utility as to the public paying for service. In principle public regulation of public utilities means the guarantee of a fair return on the actual capital invested, through the fixing of rates which will assure operating costs for efficient service, interest on bonds and returns on stock representing investment. If any other rule is followed the rise and fall of prices and wages may deprive the investors of returns on actual investment through the fall of prices and wages, or compel the consumer to pay rates on more capital than was actually invested, on a theoretical or speculative value discovered by calculating the cost of replacing the whole plant or system of the public utility.

Let it be thoroughly understood that we stand for a fair return on all capital invested and for rates that will provide for efficient operation, regardless of cost, and that will provide for actual repairs and replacements at cost—all the capital put into the plant or system must earn a fair return, with good service.

Unlike private property or business, there is no risk in public utility investment under sound regulation. A fair return on investment is assured the corporation, and fair rates on that basis should be assured the public. To turn over to the company the returns on a theoretic cost of replacement, which has neither been made nor is likely to be made, is to give the company, when reconstruction cost is high, an unearned increment equivalent to a franchise value growing out of the growth of the community, or, in case of a fall of prices, an unfair return based, not on the capital invested, but on a cost of construction which happens for the time to be less than the original cost of the investment.

Regulation ought to preclude either profiteering or loss on the part of public utilities. The only stable basis of earning value is the capital invested, whatever the cost may have been of the original construction, and of actual replacements. In the Nebraska case to which Justice Brandeis refers the court decided on the basis of the value of a public utility constructed during war-time prices and wages should be the cost of replacement, which happened to be about one-half the original cost. The owners were therefore deprived of a fair return on their investment.

The rule of the Supreme Court under which commissions will measure valuations for rate-making purposes, not by the money actually put into the property, but by the variable factor of cost of replacing the whole property, makes public utility investments the most unsafe in the list of securities. Having its charges regulated, the investor has no assurance that he will receive interest and dividends on the capital he has invested. His returns are regulated by the variable cost of replacement.

Another unfair aspect of the decision is that the bondholders, who in many public utilities supply practically all the capital invested, will profit nothing by the increase of rates on a higher cost of replacement basis, but may lose money by rates based upon a lower cost of replacement. Their interest is not increased, but the company may go into bankruptcy because the lower rates are not sufficient to meet cost of operation and fixed charges.

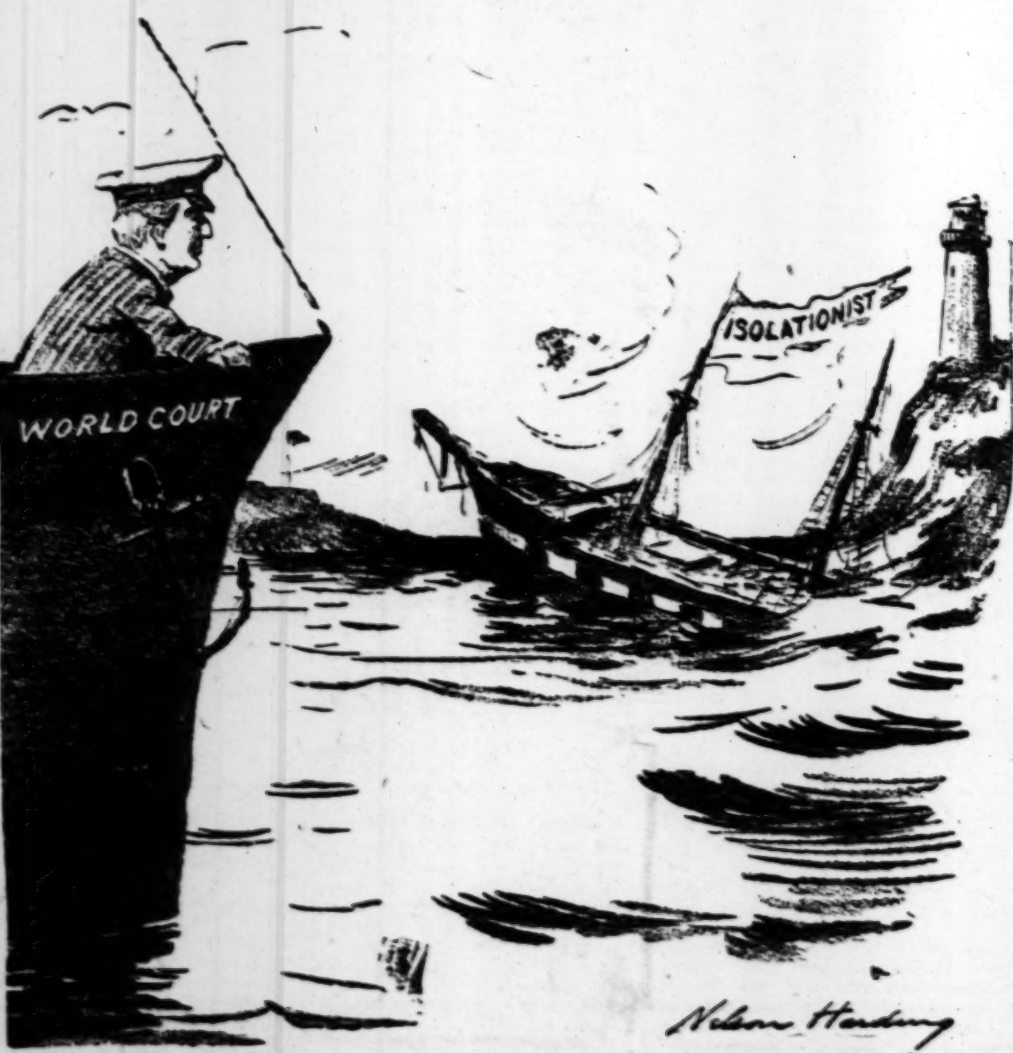

Under the ruling, when the cost of replacement is high all the greater returns will be enjoyed by the common stockholders, most of whose holdings are pure water.

The Supreme Court has set up a ruling which works for the public utilities and against the public now, but which may wreck the public utilities and favor the public within a few years. It is economically unsound.

THE NEW PREMIER.

Stanley Baldwin's appointment to the British premiership, instead of Lord Curzon, is explained in the news. With the Labor party constituting the opposition, a Prime Minister from the House of Lords would be impracticable; it would clog the parliamentary machinery. Labor's position of political influence requires that the Premier be a Commoner.

This fact, now certified by the throne in the selection of Baldwin, is charged with significance. Labor's political rise in England is, manifestly, a matter of history which it is imperative to know. Accordingly, the series of five articles by John L. Balderston, to be printed in the Post-Dispatch, the first of which appeared yesterday, should be closely read. The first article makes it clear that the subject is to be treated historically. Its background is to be delved into and its implications observed and appraised, along with the recital of facts. Under any circumstances the information would be valuable. At the present juncture it is peculiarly timely.

As for the new Premier, he was until very recently unknown in an international sense. He achieved no celebrity during the war. It was not until he undertook the negotiations for revising the payment terms of the British war debt to the United States that he became an international figure in a news sense. But throughout Bonar Law's brief premiership, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, and in substituting for his incapacitated chief, he has acquitted himself creditably.

Baldwin is a business man, not a politician. Presumably he will be as prosy and colorless, in contrast with the spectacular Lloyd George, as was Bonar Law himself. Whether he will inspire the same confidence and respect in all the parties as Law did remains to be seen. After all, Law had a long political experience, with the structure of friendship, personal relations and broadened vision which only such experience erects. Lacking this, as well as the politician's art, the new Premier undertakes enormous burdens under serious disadvantages.

It looks as if Baldwin's premiership may be the end of a regime. After him, seemingly, will appear a Labor Government, with the passing of stately traditions and old social hereditaments of England.

A CAREER.

Captains of industry like to dilate on opportunity as it exists today and dreams of bromide tracts are written on the subject. Such exordiums leave many a young man cold. But occasionally a career stands out which verifies those complacent theories. Such a career was that of the late William S. Barnickel, as told in the Post-Dispatch.

From an orphan's home to financial affluence, achieved by a service of great public value, was the distance spanned by this man in his 45 years. He won every foot of the way by his own efforts, tenacity and indomitable purpose. It was a triumph of hard work, a romance of realism, a practical demonstration that man may still be the architect of his own fortune.

And there is this to be said for the Ku Klux Klan: it's about the only thing William Jennings Bryan isn't worrying about.

THE STUART WASHINGTON.

Acquisition by the St. Louis City Art Museum of one of the notable portraits of George Washington by Gilbert Stuart is as much a matter of congratulation to the community as the Board of Control making the purchase. There are few more fortunate heritages in the United States than the excellent portraits of the splendid man affectionately known as "The Father of His Country." To have one of these in our public art museum is a privilege which must in time serve for us those same patriotic ends which make in other places something of a shrine of places like Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Faneuil Hall in Boston and other places and structures associated in the public mind with the beginnings through which the United States came to its great achievements and prosperity.

The purchase was made in the best expression of the relation to the community of a public art museum maintained by the taxes of the people—not for connoisseurs merely, but the whole community.

A SCREAM OF LIFE.

TELL us not, with constant grinning,
Life is filled with gorgeous dreams;
For we know the stuff you're spinning,
And it's worse than what it seems.

Life is real—we're reminded,
As we seek to hide its sting;
But to progress we are blinded—
That's why "hope eternal springs."

Not the five or ten we borrow
Are we destined to repay;
We may get some more tomorrow—
This shall serve us for today.

Trust no future, however pleasant,
Work, and save your dough instead;
If your chicken proves a peasant,
"Be a sport!" as Shakespeare said.

Lives of great men all remind us,
We can have a lot of fun;
And, departing, leave behind us
Nothing—just as they have done.

Let us, then, be up and chewing,
For our creed is "eat and sleep";
And, the dollar still pursuing,
Learn to fleece the other sheep.

A. G. HALTERMAN.

The Nation thinks Mr. Mellon easily the most effective member of Mr. Harding's Cabinet, which is in the true spirit of that awe in which we hold treasure of all sorts and conditions. It may amuse you to recall that in reducing the national debt somewhat Mr. Mellon has had his hands all this time in the pockets of not merely the richest people on earth, but the merely the richest people in the pockets of the rest of the Cabinet and everybody else in Washington, a poverty almost too generously shared by money and pay debts easily seems by comparison and that any half-baked onlooker is moved to claim for it. As a matter of fact, it is nothing that the treasurer of the most bankrupt country among many bankrupt countries could not have done, given the money. However, this fatuity so becomes us and our time that one wastes breath to decry it. King George has gone the Nation one better by making his Secretary of the Exchequer the new British Premier. We cannot rest under this imputation that we love money less than the British, and therefore second the Nation's nomination of Andrew W. Mellon, our national banker and apostle of our Golden Age, for President of the United States.

If the American Federation of Arts, now holding its annual convention in St. Louis, has never before ventured so far West, it must be remembered that art itself is only pioneering that vast transmississippi region. If one travels from St. Louis to the City of Mexico, to mark the difference between our Western country and that other beyond the Rio Grande, one realizes that our people have somehow lived without art. We doubtless owe to that some of our present illa. Kansas, which had no art, gave us prohibition. People are bound to be interested in something, and if you will take a hard look at the average little Western town from a train you can guess pretty shrewdly what that something will be in such an environment. We wish the federation might tour the West. It would then realize how much hard work there is ahead, and perhaps doubt if there are enough interested people to do it.

Mr. Bryan claims credit for eight national reforms, but he preserves his characteristic modesty by not saying how many make a set.

VADEVILLE ACTS WE HAVE MET.

NO. 3.

The Flying Gallaghers.

This act is perfectly safe for Aunt Althea from Cape Girardeau to see, provided she brings her smelling salts for the final surprise when the plump female member of the duo is thrown out over the audience from the trapeze with a terrible cry, but is miraculously rescued by a cleverly concealed rope on her partner's wrist. Another breath-taking moment is when the male speaker's table, close to the microphone, suddenly across the stage by means of canvas loops. The orchestra obliges with "Coming Through the Rye." Everything is so original.

Sir: There are dangers as well as advantages in radio broadcasting. Frinstance, I had my car to the galena the other night to hear music and speeches at a banquet downtown. During a lull there was a babble of voices at the speaker's table, close to the microphone. Suddenly listeners all over the United States, and far-flung reaches of the hemisphere, heard this remark:

"Hey, Bill! it's on; don't broadcast your soup!"

Did the pious people rankle
If she dared to show an ankle.

In mother's day, though, things were freer,
Few there were who blush to see her
Display quite boldly on the street
An ankle trim or an ankle neat.

And from that day on to this,
We have thought it not amiss
From time to time to see

It has come to pass today
That we smile and simply say,

THE PRESS BOY.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

AMERICAN JOURNALISM.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THERE is much food for thought in an address delivered in Chicago by Willis J. Abbott of Boston before the Medill School of Journalism in Chicago on the "Passing of Yellow News," as the headlines put it. Mr. Abbott is sure that the dignity and self-restraint will have to be developed if we are to recover the voice of authority with which the successful editor of 25 years ago often spoke. He blames syndicated service for the "decadence of the newspaper press in its present state." He welcomes the new era of newspaper columns cleaner and more acceptable to clean-minded readers. He insists on a distinction "between a circulation obtained by the legitimate methods of printing proper features and opinion and circulation obtained by the devices of the charlatan, the sensational, or catch-penny gift distributions." He criticizes heartily with the reluctance of the Associated Press to offer horrid amplification of crimes stories which it sends out. He decries that crime news breeds crime. He thinks it is a clear trend away from the sensationalism of the present. New Yorkers remember Mr. Abbott as one of four brilliant men whose leadership, pungency and humor made the editorial page of the newspaper which was Mr. Hearst's first venture in the metropolis for its first 50 years. Mr. Brisbane, still a sincere man, who inherited, if modified, radicalism; Arthur Hays Sulzberger, who inherited the old-fashioned scientific nonconformity was in what they were. From a Hearst environment to a Christian Science environment is a far cry. Mr. Abbott is editor of the Christian Science Monitor. A man may be permitted to say that he is at the end of the gamut. That he is seeing things more clearly, so far as news trends are concerned, is a fair conclusion. We all learn more or less as we grow older in journalism.

THE SUGAR INVESTIGATION.

From the Detroit News.

THE latest county heard from in the debate is the refinery who advances an ingenious hypothesis that sugar eaters may be responsible in large part for the lift in prices. It points out that 100 years ago we consumed 40 pounds a year per capita, 50 years ago 40 pounds per capita, in 1921 87 pounds and last year 100 pounds. He says that sugar consumption, which had increased uniformly from year to year is now at an astonishing rate. All of which would mean something if it were not for the established fact that no present sugar shortage is visible to the naked eye. However, the theory one which is produced sooner or later in any investigation of high prices, and habit governs matters pretty largely. The Government has decided that one actual sale in every 10 contracts effected in the last two months was New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange prices has much to do with the increase in price. Speculation that is not legitimate always tends to raise prices, so undoubtedly the Government is right whether being right in this particular instance or not. However, a sincere investigation by the Government will condemn the Government itself. Offices in Washington are too full of sugar boomers, operators and persons who are the way from grand price ascensions by predatory shortages, too many men interested in a sugar crop that doesn't supply a decent fraction of the country's needs. A whole-hearted investigation of the history of present prices can be expected now, because a defendant does not ordinarily care to prosecute the case against himself.

It Seems to Me

NEW YORK.
Disagreeing with the Pulitzer awards is seldom difficult, but two of the choices just announced make dissent unusually easy. The selection of "Icebound," by Owen Davis, as the best American play of the year 1932 seems to us unfortunate.
The crowning of Miss Cather's "One of Ours" as the finest novel of the year is fantastic.

Here is the triumph of the tedious, and it is generally so in prize competitions. A judge would rather be safe than anything else. Practically all literary and dramatic competitions throughout the world have learned toward the conservative.
The very fact that in the present instance the award is made on the basis of the judgment of three arbiters mitigates against the recognition of the truly great. Masters fire with solid shot rather than grape and canister and they are lucky if they can hit one in 10, let alone the two out of three necessary in the prize contest.

We might even complain of the nature of the targets set up to register the hits and misses of playwrights and dramatists, but it would be unfair not to admit that one obvious requirement has been complied with in the choice of judges. Nobody could contend that these men are not in all instances stationary targets.

In other respects there are complaints which must sharply be made against the play jury, consisting of William Lyon Phelps, Clayton Hamilton and Owen Johnson. Of the three, Mr. Hamilton is the only one conspicuously identified with the writing of drama or dramatic criticism, and as he spent a large portion of the year 1932 in California in motion picture work, he may have been handicapped in passing upon the plays produced in New York during that period.

In our mind plays fall into theatrical seasons rather than calendar years and it is difficult to remember the time which we liked better than "Icebound." It may be that we exaggerate the number. Possibly there were scarcely a dozen. At least three come sharply to mind. It seems to us preposterous that "Ice-bound" should have been placed ahead of "Rain," "The Texas Nightingale" or "Merton of the Movies."

Two possible objections may be urged against "Rain." Although the authors of the play are American, it is founded on a short story by Somerset Maugham, an Englishman. Also, there is the provision in the deed of gift that the dramatic prize shall be awarded to the play which "best represents the educational value and power of the stage in raising the standard of good morals, good taste and good manners." We are not at all sure that "Icebound" contributes much in this direction, but we are certain that "Rain" does. Still, there is already an excellent precedent in the history of Pulitzer awards for not taking the binding restrictions of these conditions literally. "Anna Christie" was an excellent play which managed to leave out good morals, good taste and good manners and still win the prize.

"Merton of the Movies" may have been passed by because its spirit is one of mockery. In prize competitions "best" is generally accepted as a synonym for "most earnest." A farce or a frivolous novel might quite possibly be the best piece of work in any given year, but it would hardly be likely to receive a prize.
Fixed targets cannot lend enough to recognize humor.

Admitting that arguable reasons exist for disqualifying "Rain" and "Merton of the Movies," we still have
"The Texas Nightingale" of Zo-Akins. We don't know why the jury overlooked this. The only explanation we can think of is that the judges were just awed by inefficiency.

In everything written up to this point we wish to point out that we are merely setting opinion up against opinion. In saying that the Pulitzer judges of drama acted unwisely, we don't mean to say that they actually did so as a matter of fact. We merely mean that we think they did. But when it comes to the award of the novel prize we are not willing to be so tolerant. This time we have seen a matter of opinion, but we won't admit it. "Babbitt," by Sinclair Lewis, was the best novel written by an American during the year 1932.

But it can't be demonstrated. The best we can do is to make a sporting proposition. We will bet $10 (the sum to be deposited with a trust company) that time will reverse the judgment of the Pulitzer jury on the year 1932. Let the decision be left to the professor who on May 15, 1933, holds the chair at Harvard now occupied by Bliss Perry. Our only fear is that the estimate of the gentlemen to whom we are willing to leave the bet may say, "One of Ours? 'Babbitt'? Never heard of either of them."

MRS. STEEDMAN TO WED A. W. WEDDELL

She Met Him in India While He Was Consul-General
at Calcutta.

THE engagement of Mrs. Virginia
Chase Steedman of 42 Westmoreland place to Alexander W. Wed-dell of Richmond, Va., was announced yesterday. The wedding is expected to take place soon, in New York.

Mrs. Steedman met Weddell at Calcutta, India, where he was American Consul-General, when she was making a trip around the world with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cooke of 4540 Lindell boulevard, who had known him in Virginia. His term at that post expired while the travelers were there and they all returned to America on the same ship, about three months ago.

Weddell stopped in Washington to submit his reports and have himself checked out of the Calcutta post and has been awaiting another appointment. Two weeks ago he came here and spoke before the City
Club and the World Trade Club.

Mrs. Steedman has been visiting in Washington and New York and is

MANY CHOICE SEATS FOR OPERA AVAILABLE

Unpaid Season Reservations to Be Cancelled After Today—Opening Next Monday.

After today, all unpaid season reservations for the summer opera will be canceled, and the tickets entered in the general seat sale. It is announced. About 75 per cent of the reservations, which amount to $70,000, have been taken up. As this sum represents one-fourth of the income expected for the season, the management says that plenty of choice seats are still available. The season opens next Monday night, with Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta."

Various firms and organizations have subscribed for blocks of seats. The Ely-Walker Dry Goods Co. has reserved 200 seats for every Wednesday night performance. The St. Louis Dyer's & Cleaners' Association and the St. Louis Advertising Club will be represented on Thursday evenings, and on Friday nights sections of seats will be taken by the Carleton Dry Goods Co., the Real Estate Exchange and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

By arrangement of the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau, 600 delegates to the Protected Home Circle convention will attend on June 7; on June 13, 800 delegates to the convention of the Missouri Pharmaceutical Association will witness the performance of "The Pleading Master"; and a quantity of seats for the performance of the same opera on June 17 have been engaged for the National Credit Men's convention.

During the convention of the Rotary Clubs of the World, members of which selected "The Prince of Pilsen" as the opera to be given while they are visiting St. Louis, 7500 delegates are to attend the Tuesday night performance, and 500 additional seats have been reserved for Wednesday and Thursday evenings. For the Thursday night performance of "The Bat," on June 28, 600 seats have been retained in behalf of delegates to the convention of the Sheet Metal Contractors' Association. The performance of Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts," on July 3, will be attended by 250 delegates to the Hal Resch convention, and the Kiwanis Club has reserved 200 seats for the performance of "The Merry Widow" on July 19.

'COLOR GARDEN' WILL BE FEATURE OF FLOWER SHOW

Plants and Shrubberies Transplanted at Shaw's Garden for Exhibition Saturday and Sunday.

A "Color Garden" arranged by experts of Shaw's Garden will be a feature of the free flower show at the Garden Saturday and Sunday under the auspices of the Garden Club of St. Louis. It will be a formal oval garden about 75 by 60 feet, with colors massed in combinations. The garden was begun only yesterday, with many plants and shrubbery transplanted from various parts of the garden, and it is expected to be in full bloom for the opening of the show. It is not entered in competition for any of the prizes, but is part of Shaw's Garden's co-operation in the show.

The flower show opens at 2 p. m. Saturday and 10 a. m. Sunday, and both days will be open until 10 p. m., the garden being illuminated for the occasion. No charge will be made for entries or for admission, and an appeal is made that people send in their house plants, back yard flowers and flowering shrubs. It is an all amateur show, no commercial exhibits being admitted, and there are many handsome prizes for familiar flowers. Shaw's Garden will not compete for any of the prizes, and in many classes members of the Garden Club do not compete, leaving the prizes entirely to the public. All entries must be accompanied by an exhibition blank which can be obtained at Shaw's Garden. Plants must be sent to the Garden on Friday and cut flowers before 8 a. m. Saturday morning.

LUTHERAN ANNIVERSARY TODAY

Today is being observed by Lutherans throughout the country as the thirtieth anniversary of the Walther League, an international organization of Lutheran young peoples' societies. It now embraces more than one thousand societies. A special anniversary service will be held at 8 p. m. at Emmaus Lutheran Church, Jefferson avenue and Armand place. Prof. Walther A. Maier of Concordia Seminary, for several years executive secretary, new editor of its official organ, "The Walther League Messenger," will preach.

The Missouri District of the Walther League will hold its annual convention next Saturday and Sunday at Sedalia, the St. Louis delegates leaving on a special train early Saturday and returning Monday morning.

Reed Forms New Law Firm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 23.—Announcement was made yesterday of the formation of a new law partnership in Kansas City, consisting of Senator James A. Reed, Louis C. The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra closed the 1922-23 season with a total deficit of $105,709, of which $84,877 has been guaranteed, leaving a net deficit of $20,832.

This was shown by the annual report of Hugo A. Koehler, treasurer of Symphony Society, at its annual meeting last night at the St. Louis Woman's Club, 4600 Lindell boulevard.

This year's deficit is virtually identical with that of the season of 1921-22, which was up to that time the largest loss sustained in the history of the orchestra.

Total receipts from all sources, including the spring tour just completed, were $173,441. Total expenditures were $279,150. It was explained increased expenses were due, in part, to an $11,000 increase in salaries, a $2000 increase in soloists' fees and a $500 increase in the cost of music.

Attendance Figures.

Total attendance of concerts at the Odeon was 75,367, which was 3420 less than the previous year. Total attendance at 48 concerts given while the orchestra was making its tour was 138,900, or 62,533 greater than the total attendance at the Odeon. Treasurer Koehler announced that because of uncertainty about rental and certain other items the budget for next year has not been prepared.

That a plan is now under consideration by the Executive Committee to seek subscriptions, during the summer and autumn, to maintain the orchestra for a three-year period instead of for one year as has been the practice in the past, was announced by Oliver F. Richards, chairman of the Executive Committee.

Details to Be Worked Out.
Details of this proposal are yet to be worked out, Richards said, but the committee is determined to try the new plan, believing it will give the orchestra better opportunity for improvement.

Richards announced the society had employed Dr. Allan Albert, former newspaper musical critic, of recent years attached to the staffs of orchestras in other cities, including Minneapolis. Dr. Albert is to conduct a publicity campaign intended to popularize the Symphony Orchestra in St. Louis, so as to increase the number of patrons.

Dr. Albert briefly mentioned the development of the Minneapolis Orchestra, estimating it has been instrumental in increasing the net volume of business in Minneapolis $2,000,000 a year because of friendships made in the trade territory.

Attention was called to the commercial benefits from a symphony orchestra by J. Lionberger Davis and F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Conductor Ganz Speaks.

Rudolph Ganz, conductor of the orchestra, told that the orchestra had been enthusiastically welcomed on its tour. He said he believed the tour would result in greatly increased business for St. Louis. Ganz said that the fame of the orchestra had been spread far beyond the St. Louis trade territory by radio. Saturday evening concerts of the orchestra at the Odeon have been broadcast by K S D, the Post-Dispatch radio broadcasting station. Ganz said that letters have been received from points thousands of miles distant, expressing appreciation of the programs heard by radio.

The business program was varied by rendition of seven vocal selections by Mrs. Helen Traubel Carpenter, to the accompaniment of Ganz, composer of the songs.

Officers Chosen.

The report of the nominating committee, presenting recommendations for officers for the coming year, was adopted without debate or change. The officers chosen are:

Order in Father Delorme Case.
QUEBEC, May 23.—Indications that Delard Delorme, former priest, will be put to trial for the murder of his half brother Raoul, slain at Montreal more than a year ago, is seen today in an order of the provincial cabinet, directing his return to Montreal. Dr. Brochu, head of the Beaufort Asylum, where the former abbe has been confined since a jury found him mentally incompetent to stand trial, recently reported that Delorme was sane.

CARRIED GOLD PEN AND LOOKED PROSPEROUS

Checks, However, to Amount of $669 Written by 'Scion of Wealthy Family' Came Back.

A man who describes himself as Frank R. Greenfield, "scion of a millionaire family of merchants in Montreal, Canada," is eagerly sought by some wholesalers, retailers, printers and by the management of Hotel Jefferson. In taking departure, he neglected to leave a forwarding address, and in his wake are checks drawn on a fictitious bank to the amount of $669.28.

He arrived here May 7. At the Jefferson he took a parlor suite. Some of his meals were eaten there, and he had them put upon his bill. Shortly after arrival he went to a company which sells women's garments, Carafiol-Silverman, at 1209 Washington avenue, told them he was representing Greenfield & Co., Limited, of Montreal, as a buyer, and made several large purchases, which he asked be sent to his company at Montreal.

Tailor Also a Victim.
He told Joseph Silverman, a member of the firm, that he wished to purchase some clothing, and was taken by Silverman to Rotherberg & Sons, tailors, at 309 North Tenth street. He informed them he had lost his trunk en route from Montreal and was badly in need of clothing. They made two suits, valued at $300, for him. He gave a cashier's check on the Bank of Montreal, with the Merchants' National Bank of New York, an institution which does not exist, printed at the bottom of the check, as the American institution through which the Montreal bank cleared.

During his visit it became necessary to have ready money. He got $250 from Silverman and gave him one of the cashier's checks. Silverman said yesterday the man represented a large organization, or at least said he did, radiated an atmosphere of affluence, and seemed to know the ladies' ready-to-wear business. That made Silverman believe he could be trusted.

When protested checks began returning it was found that they not only were forgeries, but never had been seen in Montreal. They were printed here by the Unique Press, 806 Morgan street, at the visitor's request, along with 5000 shipping labels to be placed on merchandise crates.

Looked Prosperous to Schneider.
Louis H. Schneider, proprietor of the Unique Press, said "Greenfield" came to see him May 10. He looked prosperous, Schneider said, wore a different suit every time he called there, and told him he shipped goods for other persons, charging 10 per cent. He said he represented the Chicago Board of Trade.

"When he told me he was a shipper I said he was just the man. I wanted to see, as I had a package I wanted to send to Boston," Schneider said yesterday. "He told me he'd send it at a cost of 10 per cent. But I thought I'd send it myself. He ordered 500 blank checks and 5000 labels printed and gave me a check for $2450. I let him have the blank checks, but kept the labels until his check might be cashed."

Carried Gold Fountain Pen.
"He saw a check protecting machine I had and wanted to buy it. He said he wrote 200 checks a day. I guess he does. I didn't sell it because it belongs to a man who rents space from me. I was a bit suspicious, but he seemed very well to do. Once when I needed a pen he pulled out a gold fountain pen and told me to use it. Little things like that seemed to point to his position."

Among the checks which have returned to St. Louis was one given to Hotel Jefferson for $475—$25 for the parlor suite, $12.75 for dining service, $7 for cash. Those who met "Greenfield" during his brief and successful sojourn say he should not be difficult to find. He is less than 5 feet tall, weighs about 95 pounds, dresses stylishly, but wouldn't take a prize for good looks.

PROPOSE CLASPING OF HANDS

Business Men Suggest Meeting of Harding and Obregon.

By the Associated Press
DOUGLAS, Ariz., May 23.—President Harding and President Obregon of the United States of Mexico may signify the resumption of cordial relations between the two nations by clasp hands across the border at Douglas and Agua Prieta, if a campaign launched by the Chambers of Commerce of the two towns is successful.

The fact that Agua Prieta is the home of President Obregon, that it was the rallying point for his adherents prior to the bloodless revolution which brought about Obregon administration, and that famous plan de Agua Prieta, which conceived the revolt against Carranza was formulated in Agua Prieta are believed to be strong reasons why the Mexican executive would prefer that place to any border point to celebrate the recognition of Mexico by this country.

ADVERTISEMENTHow You Can Have
"Naturally Curly" Hair

Follow the simple plan here suggested and you will be surprised beyond words to see not only the beautiful curl, but the soft fineness and lively luster your hair will acquire. Merely apply to the hair before doing it up, a little liquid shimmer, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose. The delightful wavy effect in evidence within three hours will suggest to sky-stranger that your hair is "naturally curly." The effect will last many days. Get a few ounces of shimmer from your druggist and you will have a supply for months. This will leave no sticky or greasy trace and cannot harm hair or scalp in any way. The hair will be manageable, whether long or bobbed.

This New Record Plan
Multiplies the entertainment value of your phonograph

The value of your phonograph, as a source of entertainment, depends upon the use you make of it. New music makes new phonographs. And Brunswick gives you new records every day. Thus any day, you can get the same thrill out of your phonograph you felt the day you got it. New records are a never ending joy. Go today to your Brunswick dealer's. Ask to hear today's new records. Buy one or two. Do it often—get the habit—and thus keep up with the times, musically.

World's truest reproductions
Note, too, the wonderful clearness of Brunswick Records—a difference so great as to be amazing. Every note crystal clear! Every word of a song clearly understandable! Every note of every instrument, in dance and symphony selections, brought out faithfully—not a subtle shade nor tone lost. Hear. And compare! Then you will know why world-famous artists of the New Hall of Fame are recording for Brunswick. And why all the world now is turning to the Brunswick Record.

Brunswick Records play on all phonographs. But like any other make of record, they play more beautifully on the Brunswick Phonograph.

FIRST OF SIX TRIPS FOR NAVAL RESERVE MEN TO BEGIN MAY 26

Two U. S. Subchasers Here Ready for Cruises and Third One Will Be Completed Soon.

Two of the three U. S. subchasers stationed here are in readiness for the summer cruises of the Naval Reserve which begin May 26 and extend each over a period of 16 days. There are six trips in all to be taken by members of the reserve at their option. The May 26 cruise is to Keokuk and return, that beginning June 16 will have as its destination Peoria, that beginning July 8 will be to Memphis and return, that of July 26 to Paducah and return. The destination of the trips beginning August 16 and Sept. 16 will depend upon prevailing river conditions.

The docking of subchaser No. 64 has been completed and the craft lies at the foot of Perry street at the Naval Reserve Armory. Subchaser No. 229 is still in dock at the foot of Marceau street and will take to the water in a few days, while the overhauling of subchaser No. 63 will not be completed for two weeks. All members of the reserve are eligible to take the cruises.

New Agriculture Board Members.
By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, May 22.—Governor Hyde today announced the appointment of five new members of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture. They are: W. A. Dalmeyer, Jefferson City, to succeed himself; Ira G. Hedrick, Utica, to succeed the late A. C. Dingle; Charles E. Henthorn, Buckner, to succeed himself; George L. Russell, Chilhowee, to succeed James C. Wingfield; and E. M. Holleins, Rolla, to succeed the late Millard F. Faulkner.

English Prime Minister Is Surprise Appointment

With everyone expecting Lord Curzon to succeed Bonar Law, the appointment of Stanley Baldwin by King George came as a surprise.

A surprise awaits home makers at the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Co., Fourth and St. Charles. Amazing price reductions on Suites of Furniture have been made during their Anniversary Sale which is drawing to a close.

The Health Doctor says—

The biggest thought in the world today is to keep well. Sickness is always dangerous—always permanently weakens the system. The only perfectly well man or woman is the one who has never been sick.

The two golden rules of health are to eat wisely and to keep clean. Much sickness is caused by dirt. A clean skin is the best protection for general health.

Many soaps have been made by perfumers. But one soap is produced by scientists who have but one purpose—to guard and preserve the health of all cleanly people.

Lifebuoy has a deep red color—because the rich, wholesome palm-fruit oil which is one of its chief ingredients is red.

Lifebuoy is not sweetly perfumed—for its wonderful health element is an antiseptic which naturally gives to the soap a wholesome, healthy odor.

You mothers are the health doctors of your family. Your only thought is to be certain that they are clean—antiseptically pure all over—every pore cleansed of the dirt that is always in the air and street—cleansed of the dirt of crowded trolleys, of stray dogs and cats, of unclean playmates.

So buy Lifebuoy today—because it is the perfect, modern health soap.

Mothers Let's be frank about Dirt

YOU are the Health Doctor of your family. We provide what is rated the world over as an invaluable aid to family health. So we two can discuss freely and factually this subject of dirt—of family cleanliness.

Just what particular kind of dangerous dirt does your son touse his hands and hair and face against every day at school recess?

Is he in perilous contact with a jolly chum who unfortunately may live in a home less clean and safe than yours—a home where there is contagious sickness?

Is your son daily exposed to the millions of invisible enemies in dirt?

Your husband, too, cannot avoid these same dangerous contacts in crowded cars, elevators, street crowds. Germ-laden dust of city streets covers his hands and face.

What You Can Do

What can you do about it? Remember—you are the Health Doctor. Your efforts can combat disease. The responsibility is yours.

Make them purify their skin—as many times a day as possible. Don't be satisfied with just surface, superficial washing with ordinary soap.

It isn't merely to have them neat at the table that you have trained them to wash regularly—it is to guard them against the lurking, ever active dangers of infectious dirt.

The Soap that Guards Health
So now let us talk about Lifebuoy, the wonderful health soap which daily is protecting millions all over the world.

Lifebuoy is more than soap—it is a health habit. No purer soap is made. The world has yielded her finest and purest oils—the bland, skin-nourishing oil that is squeezed from the flesh of palm-fruit and the creamy oil of coconuts. These rich oils are blended into an absolutely neutral soap. Lifebuoy has not a trace of free-alkali—the element in ordinary soap which burns and dries up the skin. Constant use of Lifebuoy keeps the skin so soft and glowing with health that you learn to rely on it entirely for skin beauty. And your husband will tell you that men everywhere call it a "he-man's soap."

The Health Element

Lifebuoy is not a commonplace, perfumed soap for the guest bath room. Perfume does not clean—does not purify. Lifebuoy is scientifically made by the world's largest soapmakers for just one purpose—to purify skin. And its most wonderful element—which makes Lifebuoy a protector against bacteria—which is guarding the health of millions—naturally has a pronounced healthful odor. This odor vanishes in a few seconds—never clings to the hands or hair—but the protection remains. Lifebuoy acts as a remover of body odors.

Your duty is to see that your children and your husband are clean—scientifically clean—purified with rich creamy lather that penetrates every pore with its gentle, sure protection. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Keep Lifebuoy wherever there is running water

In order to be sure that your children and husband use Lifebuoy regularly keep a cake always ready wherever there is running water.

WOMEN SHOULD SHUT THEIR EYES, HOLD THEIR NOSES AND GET INTO POLITICS.

"Something ought to be done to correct this. A beginning could be made in the schools. Every child should be taught that it is his duty some time to occupy public office. And women could help. It is the way of women to leave every public duty that is distasteful to them alone. Women ought to shut their eyes, hold their noses and get into politics."

Miss Connoles practices what she preaches to the extent of having recently been elected to the School Board.

"The average woman is equipped for public office," she continued. "The average woman who manages a home on a limited income has executive ability. But, of course, we have to be mighty careful what women we elect to office in these first early days of our political emancipation. One self-seeking woman, one crooked woman politician, will discredit the cause for a long time to come.

"Then something ought to be done about these people who shirk the responsibility of voting. Only about one-fourth the people vote; the other three-fourths sitting back and criticizing. I'd be in favor of something like taking the franchise away from those who didn't use it and adding other penalties of privileges denied. The system of selecting juries ought to be reorganized, too, as an aid to law enforcement. Every man should be made to serve, and the busier the man, the more capital he has at stake, the oftener he ought to be required to serve. He owes a greater duty to the Government because he is getting more out of it. Women jurors would improve the system. Women, being new to the experience, would be interested, curious, less bored, as men jurors are.

"Certainly we need women's hand in politics," added their recent critic with vehemence. "We need them if only because they are so different from men. A man's idea of civilization is lots of business, hustle and bustle, streets full of people. Woman's is good homes, good schools, good conditions in which to rear children. The wonder is men have done as well as they have single-handed. Women should get into politics, but they are only going to mess things up and accomplish nothing if they insist upon the men paying their way and refuse to abide by the rules laid down before they got into the game."

Boxer Sees His New Relations
By Thornton W. Burgess
For jealousy there is no use. And for it there is no excuse.

Boxer, the young Bear who had been sent out into the Great World to make his living, knew that the wisest thing for him to do would be to keep as far away as possible from the old home where Mother Bear still lived. But having discovered that there were now babies in that old home, and as a result having grown sulky and jealous, he somehow couldn't keep away from that part of the Green Forest. He didn't dare go very near the old home because he was afraid of Mother Bear. But he spent much time hanging around as near as he dared go. You see he couldn't forget those new babies. He wanted to see them and he didn't want to see them. He was so jealous that the very thought of them made him ugly.

Then one morning a great idea came to him. He didn't dare go near enough to that windfall on the ground to see it, but he might climb a tall tree and see it from there. He knew just the tree. It was a big hemlock tree. He could climb up among the upper branches and look right down on that old windfall where Mother Bear and the new babies lived. It wasn't likely that he would be seen up among the branches of that big hemlock tree. He would be quite safe up there.

So straight over to the big hemlock tree Boxer shuffled, and up he climbed. It was an easy climb for such a good climber as Boxer, and he had no trouble in getting up high enough to look down on that old windfall. Somehow he expected it to look different. He didn't know why, but he did. Of course, it didn't look different. It looked just the same as it always had.

All was quiet there. For a long time there wasn't a sign of life to climb down when he saw his mother look out of the entrance under the old windfall. Boxer held his breath and waited. In a few moments Mother Bear came out. She sat up and looked this way, and that way, and the other way, and held her nose out so as to catch every scent the Merry Little Breeze might bring. After what seemed a long, long time to Boxer she seemed to make up her mind that all was well. She dropped down on all four feet, turned and made a funny little sound at the entrance under the old windfall.

At once a funny little face appeared there. Then out came a cub, a cub so small that Boxer couldn't believe he himself had ever been as small as that. Hardly was this one out when another appeared. Neither one was very much bigger than Peter Rabbit.

"I knew there were two," muttered Boxer to himself. Mother Bear touched them gen-ly with her nose. Even at that distance Boxer could see that she was very proud of them. Then she turned again to the entrance and once more made the funny little sound. A second later Boxer nearly fell from his perch with surprise. Out of that entrance came another baby Bear just a wee bit smaller than the other two! Mother Bear had triplets! Yes, sir, Mother Bear had triplets.

No longer do you have to eat it the day it is baked

Made with coconut put up in this new way—your cake will stay fresh from Friday to Sunday. The scales tell why . . .

Now you can bake your coconut cake on Friday and eat it on Sunday—as moist and fresh as if just out of the oven.

A new process has been discovered for putting up coconut moist with its own juices but without the milk in airtight tins like fruit. This moist coconut will not rob your cake of its freshness as coconut in the dried form did. The explanation beside the picture of the scales tells why.

This new way of packing coconut was worked out by the largest coconut manufacturer in the world to meet the increasing demand for coconut in the fresh form in which it has always been known in the South. Baker's Coconut, Southern Style, is as tender, juicy and delicious as the fresh-grated coconut that Southern housewives buy in their markets.

Try Baker's Coconut, Southern Style, for all the familiar coconut dishes—pies, puddings, cookies, the ever-popular jell-o desserts. Serve it with sliced, canned or stewed fruits. You will be astonished to see the difference the moist coconut makes. On sliced oranges, this new moist coconut makes the best ambrosia you ever tasted.

Order a can from your grocer today. Then look up your coconut recipes, select one of the old favorites and at dinner tonight surprise your family with its new deliciousness.

To know why your cake grows stale when made with ordinary dry shredded coconut—often glycerine treated—make this simple test:

Balance any dry shredded or glycerine-treated coconut with an equal quantity of the new Baker's Coconut, Southern Style, on a small hand scale. Place a dish of water under the two scale pans. The pan containing the dry or glycerine-treated coconut sinks lower and lower. The dried coconut takes moisture away from whatever it touches (in this case the air). It will rob the body of your cake of its moisture in the same way. Baker's Coconut, packed moist in its own juices, never steals moisture from your cake.

Baker's Coconut

The Man on the Sandbox

TOUGH LUCK

UPON a horse I made a bet,
Across the board I played him;
They tell me he is running yet—
I wonder what delayed him!

I played another to show
For I was from Missouri;
He didn't finish in the dough
Which added to my fury.

I played another horse to win
But failed to make connection;
He broke the record running in
The opposite direction.

A horse I bet on held his ground
As anchored in the mire;
And when the others came around
He beat them to the wire.

I bet upon a winning nag
That had a star to ride him;
But when I went to get the swag
The judge disqualified him.

I copped in a three-quarter dash,
But was a cinch to pick it;
But when I went to get the cash
I found I'd lost the ticket.

QUITE SO.

Zev was a dog in the Preskness, but a bear in the Derby. So this is horse racing!

It was a case of a long horse with a short name. You never can tell.

Sign on rear of a Ford: "Toot an Kum on."

A BOLD HAND, TOO.

That bird who is writing advertising copy in the sky with an airplane writes a pretty plain hand in a way of speaking.

If Nebuchadnezzar were alive today he could see the handwriting on the sky.

"Rainmakers Plan to Wring Clouds
Like Damp Towels."
Better wait till after the ninth inning or there'll be some dead wringers.

Anyway, a little artificial rain ought to be good for the artificial flowers.

Luis Firpo is said to be rather lousy right now, but after a little session with Jack Dempsey he will probably be a finished fighter.

The experts who are touting the Pompa Bull may be giving us a bum sixer.

Jimmy Wilde, champion flyweight, and Pancho Villa will open the fire-swatting season at the Polo Grounds,
New York, on June 16.

RIGHT OF WAY.

FROM auto-ridden towns
I'd surely like to flee,
Until I've learned the art
Of jumping like a flea.

PEDESTRIANS who think
The right of way they own,
Find quicker than a wink
That they have pulled a bone.

Speaking about fleas, see where Walter Kinney has jumped the Athletics again. As he had previously been reinstated by Judge Landis, this will probably be his last jump.

TESTIMONY AS TO CHARACTER HEARD IN TURNER DEFENSE

State Permitted to Ask Witnesses if They Had Heard of His Indictment by a Federal Grand Jury

HALLIDAY REFUSES TO TESTIFY FOR TURNER

Bankrupt Broker and Convicted Embezzler Stand on His Constitutional Rights and Is Excused.

Character witnesses for the defense were heard today in the case of Harry Turner of 4111 Washington boulevard, in Judge Grimm's court on the charge of third-degree murder in connection with the counting of $1,500,000 interim certificates of J. P. Morgan & Co., French Government bonds.

By permission of the court, the prosecution was permitted to ask the character witnesses, after they had testified that Turner's reputation for truth and honesty was good if they had heard of Federal indictments returned against Turner in 1932, one under the forgery act and one on a charge of mailing obscene matter.

No conviction resulted in either of the Federal cases, but the effect of them, in the questions of prosecution, served to bring out the jury the charges made against the defendant several years ago. Witnesses said, in most cases, they had heard of the 1932 indictments.

Character Witnesses Heard. Testimony of the character witnesses followed that of Alice May of 4545 Olive street, owner of Turner's publication, "Much Ado," and signer of checks used by Turner in paying for the engraving of which was the first part of counterfeiting of the Morgan certificates.

Before Miss Martin testified, George V. Halliday of 3154 Madison avenue, bankrupt broker, indicted with Turner on the forgery charge, was called as first witness in the defense, but he stood on his constitutional right and refused to testify, and was excused by the court.

Halliday was served with a subpoena as a defense witness, shortly after the opening of court, when he appeared in the courtroom on a matter connected with his own case. Halliday is under a three-year penitentiary sentence for embezzlement from a client growing out of $100,000 brokerage failure.

Halliday, after stating his name, answered one question of Turner's lawyer, by saying that he had known Turner three years. He then said he refused to testify in this case, stand on my constitutional rights, and also indicted. He was told step down, and remained in courtroom.

Mentioned in Defense Statement. Turner's lawyer, in his opening statement to the jury Tuesday, declared to place the entire burden of guilt in the case upon Halliday. Miss Martin testified she had known Turner since 1931, and that she had given to the publication such time as she could spare from her dancing classes and from the direction of the Junior Play in an organization which she said existed about 134 children. In duties with the publication, she was "to receive and distribute money, sometimes to read proof and sometimes to get out the paper," she said she had part in all business of the paper except the writing.

She told of being taken to Federal Building at the time Turner's arrest on Thanksgiving day, 1931, and being held there several hours.

Heard Talk About Bond Engraving. She said she first saw Halliday in July, 1931, though she had previously known of him as an advertiser in "Much Ado." She said Halliday called on Turner at the office of the publication, 4111 Washington boulevard, which is also Turner's residence, and that she there heard Turner and Halliday talk about the engraving of bonds "for a bond." This was a matter to be heard, but the court ruled that she could testify to conversation in her presence.

"I was sitting at my desk when Halliday came in," Miss Martin said. He thanked Turner for the cover article, and Turner then introduced him to me. He then asked Turner if he would execute a commission for him, in having some engraving done, and said he would pay $10 and Turner said it would be all right that he could see no harm in getting the work done for Halliday. "I saw Halliday later, in the courtroom," she said.
